Wrestler to Enter Mass Strait Swim

A 248-pound professional wrestler announced today he will enter the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored mass swim across Juan de Fuca Strait late this summer.

Don Leroy Kindred, 31, a Montreal-born former U.S. Army officer, said following a wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom: "If Bert Thomas can do it, I can do it."

The university-educated grappler said he'd like to be the first colored person to conquer the strait.

RAW STEAK DIET

Kindred has been testing his endurance to cold water in Lake Washington, Seattle.

He has been training on ground raw steak.

"I am really sincere about wanting to swim the strait," he said. "I wouldn't want people to think I'm going to try just for the publicity to help my name in wrestling."

He has fought all over North America, and in Australia and New Zealand.

Kindred is a former assistant lifeguard on beaches at Atlantic City and Cape May, N.J.

Six hours is about the longest he has stayed in salt water, but this was in warm water at Hawaii, and was purely recreational. He has yet to remain that time in these coastal waters.

Don measures five feet 10½ inches, is well-proportioned with emphasis on extra-developed chest, neck and shoulders.

Meanwhile, Mayor Ivor Smith of Port Angeles said today he will approach the chamber of commerce there to enlist aid in raising funds for a strait swim.

He is particularly interested in the projected match race between Bert Thomas of Tacoma and Canadian champion marathon swimmer Cliff Lumsdon of New Toronto, this summer.

Asked if he thought the chamber of commerce there would support the swim—a minimum of $10,000 is needed—he said:

"I'm sure they would bring it up for a drive. I'm contacting them today. Personally, I think the whole idea is fine, and think things like this do a great deal to build mutual interests between our two cities and our two countries."

The Port Angeles chamber meets Monday and the subject will be discussed at that time.

Hypnotized City Divorcee Wins Ban Against Trances

Placed Under Spell In Empress Hotel Judge Is Informed

A Victoria woman claimed in Supreme Court chambers today that her divorced husband hired a woman hypnotist from Toronto to hypnotize her into going back to him.

Mrs. Helen Emma Cooper of 887 Cowper Avenue, Victoria, was granted an injunction to restrain her former husband, Thomas Amiel Cooper, and Mrs. Dorothy Westlake, the hypnotist, from "interfering or committing trespass in any way" upon her.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson granted the injunction after three affidavits had been filed with the court.

Mrs. Cooper's affidavit stated that she divorced her husband, Thomas Cooper, in Victoria on Feb. 8, 1954. The decree gave her custody of their two children, Terry Ammon Cooper and Tamarra Shlomite Cooper, but the husband had right of access to them.

She claimed she was hypnotized in a room at the Empress Hotel.

Two police officers stated that the woman tried to hypnotize them and it was so effective they told her to "stop it."

Ever since, the husband had continually annoyed and bothered her with telephone calls by himself and persons in his employ—"in particular a woman known to me as Mrs. Dorothy Westlake," the woman claimed.

Mrs. Cooper said she was employed in a furniture store in Victoria. On March 13 this year, a blonde woman walked into the store and said she was new to Victoria and would be needing household furniture.

"She said she was a hypnotist from Toronto and a friend had suggested that if she was in Victoria she should contact Miss Beirness—my maiden name and the one I work under at the store."

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake asked her to dinner at the Empress Hotel for a "talk about furniture."

She offered to bring the store manager but Mrs. Westlake said: "No, I want to talk business with a woman."

In the hotel room Mrs. Westlake said she was known as Madame Westlake. She came from England and had been in Toronto a short time. Then she came out to Vancouver and, "not liking the climate there, had proceeded to Victoria."

Mrs. Westlake talked about furniture for a while, then switched to her own personal affairs. She said she had recently re-married her husband and was expecting him to arrive in Victoria the next day.

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake laid particular emphasis on her re-marriage during the conversation.

"I felt something was not right," Mrs. Cooper stated in the affidavit. She then called on a private investigator, Conrad Watling of the National Investigation Agency, Ltd., and told him what had happened.

Mr. Watling agreed to investigate the woman hypnotist during a second meeting she had arranged with Mrs. Cooper at the Empress Hotel.

They went together to the Empress Hotel where she introduced Mrs. Watling to Mrs. Westlake as a friend of hers named "Con."

Mr. Watling left the room soon afterwards saying he had to make another call. Mrs. Westlake said to him "Don't worry, you are leaving her in good hands." She was wearing lounge pyjamas and had a drink beside her.

"The room was almost overpowering with the scent of perfume and very warm," Mrs. Cooper stated. "Mrs. Westlake told her to make herself at home and said 'Perhaps a drink would relax you.'"

Mrs. Cooper said while they were talking about furniture Mrs. Westlake spilled a drink over her dress—she thought intentionally—then suggested she should change into pyjamas.

She did as requested and Mrs. Westlake reverted to her own personal affairs.

"She said she herself was in love with six different men all at the same time as well as married to her husband and she could have an affair with any of these men at any time she pleased in front of her husband, or otherwise, because her husband was in her power."

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake told her she would be capable of running the government because "women at all times are stronger than men."

Mrs. Westlake said she could give her this power and added: "There is no reason for people to die. To die is not necessary." She said her own husband was 65 and she was capable of stopping him from aging.

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake urged her to call Mr. Cooper and told her she would be much happier if she allowed him to "court her as a girl."

She alleged that Mrs. Westlake, after putting her into a state of trance, telephoned her husband and said: "Mr. Cooper this is Madame Westlake. You do not know me but I have Mrs. Cooper here with me and she would like to speak to you."

Mrs. Westlake was just going to put the phone into her hand when there was a knock on the door and Mr. Watling, the investigator, walked into the room.

"After that there was chaos in my mind," Mrs. Cooper concluded in her affidavit.

The story of how Mrs. Westlake is alleged to have tried to hypnotize two police officers was told by Saanich police constable Robin Stewart, who interviewed Mrs. Westlake in company with city police constable John Burdny.

Stewart said he interviewed Mrs. Westlake at the Empress Hotel and asked her if Mrs. Cooper had been drugged.

Mrs. Westlake said "No" but admitted hypnotizing her because she was feeling ill and had a poisoned foot.

Later Mrs. Westlake admitted knowing Mr. Cooper and said she had been hired by him to "come over here and get Helen back as he needed her."

She added that Mr. Cooper paid her $120, "which won't even cover my expenses." She then

U.K. Ready To Fight In Mid-East

Military Action Plans Completed

LONDON (UP)—Britain officially confirmed today that it has completed a stand-by plan for military action in the Middle East in case of war.

Official sources also said the Big Three foreign ministers will meet in Paris next month to mesh the mid-east military plans of the United States, Britain and France.

The formal British announcement through the foreign office was the firmest notice yet given by a western power that an Arab or Israeli act of aggression will be met by western force.

The announcement of Britain's readiness to intervene was seen here as a measure of the gravity with which the western Big Three regard the danger of war in the Middle East.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today called top diplomatic, defence and security officials to the White House.

It was considered highly probable the meeting involved the Middle East crisis.

The president planned to meet with Secretary of State Dulles, Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency and Chairman Arthur M. Radford of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Others scheduled to attend the conference were Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles, Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, air force chief of staff.

FO Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Miller, 1207 Union Road, was well known in Victoria, and had spent leave here with his wife and two children early last month. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are in Comox today.

FO Stubbs, 32, is the father of a girl 18 months.

FO Miller had been at the island air base only a month.

Two Canso amphibians from the RCAF's Sea Island base here took off early today to search for the jet trainer.

"It is possible the pilot and co-pilot used their seat ejector to bail out," an RCAF spokesman said.

Fourteen aircraft were to take part in the search which was delayed from a planned dawn take-off by rain, fog, low clouds and gusty winds. However, weather conditions were improving rapidly and all the planes were expected to be aloft well before noon.

Searchers Investigate Object Seen at Willow Point; One Pilot Ex-Victorian

An object believed to be the wing of an aircraft, sighted today near Willow Point, south of Campbell River, was due for investigation today by searchers hunting for two men aboard an RCAF jet trainer missing since Thursday noon.

A search still was underway by air, sea, and on foot in the territory east of Campbell River where the plane, on a training flight from Comox airport, was reported lost.

In the missing T-33 trainer were FO J. E. Miller, formerly of Victoria, and FO J. S. Stubbs, formerly of Winnipeg. Both lived at Comox with their families.

Vancouver officers of the RCAF said a member of the Ground Observer Corps reported sighting what appeared to be the wing of an airplane in the water off Willow Point.

Other GOC members today joined parties to scour the beach from Campbell River south, and to patrol the beaches of Cortez and Raza Islands, where tugboat crews reported hearing a loud explosion Thursday noon.

The plane took off from Comox Thursday at 9:45 a.m., and had fuel for two hours and 10 minutes.

Cortez Island, 15 miles east of Campbell River, is 15 miles in length and eight wide, and boasts four communities. Raza Island is about five miles north of Cortez.

Search officials said it is impossible to tell whether the plane went down on land or in the turbulent, tide-torn waters between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The tug Salvage Queen and the towboat Hecate Strait reported a low-flying jet in the area about noon. Then they heard a crash in the fog.

Two Lancasters from Comox patrolled the Georgia Strait area throughout the night, looking for flares or other traces of the plane and fliers.

An RCAF spokesman said the helicopter should be particularly useful in today's search.

"If the plane is down on land, then the helicopter would be the most likely to spot it, since it can go in close," he said.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $200 AS PUZZLERS OFF BASE

Just one wrong letter was responsible for throwing thousands of Times Crossword puzzlers out of line last week. The correct answer to the first clue down was "oases," described as "usually easy to spot from the air."

Most entries gave the solution as bases, wrong because every effort is usually made to keep them from being easily spotted.

CNR Plans Heavy Capital Expenditure

(From Times News Services)

The CNR plans to spend $233,564,000 on capital projects in 1956, the publicly-owned company told the Commons railway committee Thursday.

Its capital budget, approved by the committee, includes expenditures on road property, rolling stock, hotels and construction of branch lines. The company will seek authorization from Parliament to spend $415,011,000, of which an estimated $181,447,000 would be spent next year.

The 1956 estimate of $233,564,000 was not broken down, but the overall total was split this way: Road property including track, bridges and the like, $168,175,000; construction of branch line projects already under way, $28,028,000; rolling stock, $183,770,000; hotels, $20,608,000, mainly on Montreal's new Queen Elizabeth; investment in affiliated companies, $14,430,000.

During the sitting, President Donald Gordon told the committee it is about time for a new examination of Canada's freight rate structure, which in common with that of the United States had become outmoded with the growth of competing forms of transport.

He agreed with a suggestion of Thomas Bell, (PC-St John-Albert) that a royal commission on freight rates be set up. But he refused to comment when asked by Mr. Bell for an opinion on a 1954 statement by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan of British Columbia that railway losses on the haulage of west-ern grain at the low Crown Nest Pass rates might be subsidized by the federal treasury.

CBC Should Keep Silent Says Tory

The publicly-owned CBC should keep silent on questions of broadcasting policy, one of its chief opposition critics said Thursday.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto-Eglinton) said the CBC should not advocate any policy when it presents its brief to the royal commission on radio and television broadcasting, which opens public hearings here April 30.

As an agent of Parliament, it should advocate no course of policy on such questions as the licensing of radio and TV stations.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), whose party supports present government broadcasting policies, said the CBC should not be denied any rights of making representations now enjoyed by the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, representing private stations.

Mixed Feelings on Art Purchases

Members Thursday viewed buying policies of the National Art Gallery with mixed feelings. At issue was an item of $885,000 sought in supplementary estimates by Finance Minister Harris to enable the gallery to pay for four old masters' works from the world-famous Leichenstein collection.

The amount was finally approved and members agreed a national art gallery is a good thing. But some had reservations.

Mr. Harris said that the gallery paid $35,000 commission to Thomas Agnew and Sons Ltd., London, England, for four of the Leichenstein collection.

Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said the $885,000 meant about 630,000 bushels of wheat—the total output of about 125 Prairie farmers for a year.

"It represents about 6,000 steers, I suppose, and grainfed ones at that," he said.

H. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West) snapped at "this hill-billy approach to this question."

William Bryce (CCF, Selkirk) said it was "a shame that we will vote $885,000 for pictures."

He said the money should be used to "do something for the poor who have neither food nor seed in the north of Selkirk."

John Diefenbaker (PC, Prince Albert) and Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) said the gallery should play a large part in promoting Canadian artists' work. Mr. Diefenbaker said only about $1 out of every $22 spent by the gallery on paintings since 1945 has gone for Canadian paintings.

At least 80 per cent of the operational and maintenance staff of the D.E.W. (Distant Early Warning) radar line in Canada's Arctic will be Canadian citizens, Defence Production Minister Howe said Thursday.

He added that "a fair number" of Eskimos and Indians resident in the Arctic will be among the Canadians employed on the line.

The $1,280,000,000 Alaska-Canada-Greenland line will be operated by an American civilian contractor, Federal Electric Company, which will hire the staff, estimated at 1,200 for the Canadian section.

Work Stopped On Cassiar Rd. Pending Survey

Wade and Wells Won't Be Rehired

Work on the Stewart-Cassiar road has been stopped, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Thursday.

The decision was made by the provincial government pending an engineering survey of the route and a cabinet decision whether the road will be continued as a mining access road or built as an arterial highway.

The road raised a storm at the recent session of the legislature when charges of mismanagement and waste of public monies were made.

Mr. Kiernan said the present contractors, Wade and Wells Ltd. of Trail, will not have their contract renewed this year and three firms which bid for construction of 30 miles along Dease Lake have been told their tenders were not accepted as detailed engineering data is not available.

Only money to be spent this year on the road will be for engineering surveys, he said.

If decision is made to build the road to arterial standards, $2,000,000 a year will be needed for the next five years.

Elbe Veterans to Meet

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass news agency Thursday night said a group of Soviet war veterans have accepted an invitation to go to the United States for celebrations of the 11th anniversary of the meeting of U.S. forces on the river Elbe.

Bridge Plebiscite Set for April 5

City council Thursday approved the Point Ellice Bridge plebiscite and voting will take place April 5 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the City Market Building.

Returning officer is city clerk M. F. Hunter. City council members took strong exception to a recent letter from the Architectural Association of B.C., Victoria branch, criticizing planning for Point Ellice Bridge.

"We have investigated every phase," said Ald. Mooney.

"The site is correct as is, maintained Ald. Dowell. "Bay Street is a main artery. The bridge will have two 14-foot lanes as compared to two 11-foot lanes now."

The $550,000 bridge is planned to handle a commuter population of 25,000, five times more than we have now, said Ald. Don Smith.

"This plebiscite will pass with a wide majority."

CONVICTED NEGRO PASTOR WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A convicted leader in the Negro boycott of city buses here has pledged to continue the fight against segregation "no matter how many times" he is convicted of violating Alabama's anti-boycott law.

Rev. Martin Luther King was convicted Thursday of violating the boycott law and fined $500.

Thursday night the 27-year-old Baptist pastor vowed, at a mass meeting to continue fighting for "justice and equality" and to keep on in a leading role in the protest movement.

Council Rejects School Budget

$600,000 Gross Increase Too High Says Council; Early Parley Asked

City council Wednesday rejected the 1956 school board budget on the general objection that it is too high. Council called on the board for a meeting to discuss "every item" in the budget.

The tentative school budget was expected to increase city school mill rate by 1.4 mills, and showed a gross increase this year of $600,000. Victoria's share of the increase was about $163,000.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow told council: "It's time this school matter was brought to a head. There seems to be nothing council can do."

He pointed out that council can object as it did last year and the budget is passed anyway.

"It should by-pass this council completely and let the people know that school costs are up to the board and the government," the alderman stated.

Ald. Austin Curtis said: "We can go to arbitration. I worked on 14 school budgets and have great faith in the school board."

Council approved a new distribution of costs by the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health. The share to be paid by the city will be reduced under the new scheme while Esquimalt and the school board will pay more. Esquimalt has already approved the scheme.

Aldermen were unanimous in defeating a resolution by Ald. Robert Macmillan which has been under study since he departed for Europe almost two months ago. As Ald. W. F. Pinfold and Ald. Arthur Dowell were also leaving on winter holidays, he moved that in future aldermen's remuneration should be suspended during leaves of absence.

Council approved recommendation of public works committee by ordering Haigh and Flitton, junk dealers, to cease business on the industrial reserve.

Provincial superintendent of lands will be asked to disallow a further lease to the firm. Council earlier gave the firm six months to make earlier improvements which were not done.

Council approved a parks committee recommendation for opening of the Holland point model yacht pool to fly-casting competitions, held by Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association.

The Final Settlement

MR. HARRIS SAID IN HIS BUDGET speech that the Federal Government's final offer of revenues to the provinces was based mainly on political considerations. This is admirable candor in a time when "political" is almost a dirty word.

What Mr. Harris meant, of course, was that the Federal Government had attempted in its fiscal policy to satisfy the legitimate demands of all the provinces in a diverse nation.

Unhappily that higher objective of national unity has not yet been achieved. The largest province, Ontario, has rejected Ottawa's proposals as inadequate. It proposes to levy a provincial corporation tax on top of the existing federal tax and thus double-tax business. The financial results of such an unfortunate policy in Ontario will be accompanied, we may be sure, by large political repercussions—in the partisan sense of that term—in the next federal election. Premier Frost seems to have declared war on the national Government.

At any rate, the national Government has stood by the formula known as Plan C, by which it will exempt provincial taxpayers from basic federal taxes up to a certain amount in order that the provinces may collect their own revenues in these fields without double taxation.

The Harris budget makes a minor technical change in the formula but does not alter it significantly. The exemption levels in favor of the provinces stand at 10 per cent of the federal income tax, 9 per cent of the corporation tax and 50 per cent of succession duties.

The important thing politically—in the non-partisan sense of that term—is that exactly the same offer is made to every province. There can be no discrimination between them, no special bait to attract the voters of Quebec or any other province.

The last-minute technical change in the formula, though it may appear complicated at first sight, is really very simple.

When Plan C was first devised it provided a floor of revenue under all the provinces. That is to say, their revenues could not drop below a certain point even if the national economy experienced a recession and the Federal Government's revenues thus fell. Actually three alternative floors were inserted under the provincial treasuries to make sure that none of them, regardless of local conditions, could suffer any revenue loss.

First, they were guaranteed that they would never receive less revenue from the basic taxes and from the new equalization grants than they receive in the last year of the present taxation agreements.

Second, to protect provinces with rapidly-increasing populations, Ottawa guaranteed that there would be no loss of provincial income on a per capita basis.

Third, Ottawa guaranteed that no province would receive in any year less than 90 per cent of the average revenue received in the two preceding years. Thus if some provinces grew in wealth and income faster than others, the latter would be sure to participate in the nation's total growth. If they grew relatively little or even declined, they would always have 90 per cent of the revenues received in the previous two years and, at worst, could never fall below the revenues received in the present fiscal year.

Mr. Harris has changed this third floor to 95 per cent. That is the only change in the formula and it applies, of course, to all provinces. However, this slight change means that British Columbia will receive nearly $1,000,000 more in revenue during the next year than it would have received without the change. This figure is based on expert calculations of the nation's income and tax yield in the immediate future.

The end result is that during the first year of the new formula British Columbia should receive about $34,700,000 from the three basic taxes and the equalization grant, according to Ottawa's calculations. It is a large sum but not nearly what Premier Bennett demanded.

He asked that the tax exemption level be raised to 20 per cent of the income tax and 10 per cent of the corporation tax. If his proposal had been accepted his Government would have received about $70,000,000 in the first year of the new arrangement.

The federal policy therefore falls short of his hopes by some $15,000,000 a year. But it obviously leaves him with ample revenues, enough to support the largest provincial budget, on a per capita basis, in Canadian history.

If Ottawa had granted his demands its concessions would apply to all provinces and would have cost the federal treasury—that is to say every taxpayer in the nation—a huge amount, far more than the treasury could afford and more than the taxpayers were willing to pay.

When Mr. Bennett went on his well-earned holiday he seemed to be satisfied with the final tax formula. He will be wiser than Mr. Frost if he accepts it. Whether he accepts it or not, the formula stands and soon will be enforced by statute. Then the provinces can tax as they please but if they exceed the exemption limits of the formula their local taxpayers must carry double taxes.

Mr. Bennett apparently does not intend to embark on such an oppressive and dangerous policy. If so, he is to be commended.

Retreat From Lunacy

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER and common sense have lately won a great victory in the American Congress. By a vote of 54 to 41—a large margin in a legislature so evenly divided—the Senate has rejected rigid farm price supports, as advocated by the Democratic Party.

Instead, the Government has been given authority to move price supports upward or downward, within a fairly wide range, as conditions in the farm industry require. Mr. Eisenhower has thus secured the flexible formula he desired, along with his "soil bank," under which the state will subsidize farmers to abandon marginal crop land.

No doubt, as the Washington correspondents say, the President was able to win this issue in the Senate largely because he has decided to seek a second term. Republican senators, or most of them, could hardly risk an open breach with the leader who must carry them back into office next November on his coat tails.

However the Senate vote was achieved, it is to be welcomed not only by the American taxpayers (who must pay for farm surpluses) but by foreign nations like Canada which suffer from the dumping of those surpluses. For surpluses, of course, are the direct result of the policy of subsidizing farmers, at excessive prices, to produce unsaleable commodities.

The United States thus is retreating from a particularly virulent form of economic lunacy. But it has not escaped yet.

The Democratic Party is pledged to rigid price supports and will make them one of the largest issues of the current election, in a bid for the vital middle west farm vote. The Senate's vote probably suits the Democratic politicians perfectly for election purposes. They will argue that the Republican Party alone stands between the farmer and a higher income; and they will probably ignore the fact that the farmer's income has fallen mainly because he has produced too much of certain products and created the present huge surpluses.

Canadians should watch this argument across the border because we may have to face it here not long hence. The Conservative Party, paired with the CCF, has proposed a parity price system in Canada and presumably will continue to advocate it in next year's election campaign. Our neighbors' experience should be enough to dissuade us from this folly.

At Home and Abroad

WHETHER IT INVOLVES PROVISION of bedding and other necessities to a burned-out householder—as happened here this week—or supplies of clothing to refugee children in the Middle East—as is being carried out now—the work of the Canadian Red Cross continues day by day.

As a world-wide agency, called upon to aid humanity in case of floods or other great disasters, the Red Cross is well known in many lands. But local, small-scale work, while less publicized, is equally important to the individual who needs help.

It is to carry on these important jobs, and many others such as blood banks and emergency housekeeping services, that the Red Cross is now making a public appeal for funds. The quota for this community is $80,000, about half of which has been collected. The campaign continues until March 31. All who can should give their support to this very worthy objective.

BY DAVID BROCK

DO you know any school teachers well enough to give them presents? Myself, I think everyone should give presents to teachers. And not just apples, either. . . . even if they happen to be Ph.D.s and you want to give them an apple a day to keep them away. Your children have a great many more than a dozen teachers in their twelve grades at school, and it would be odd if you owed nothing to any of them. In a few cases you may even wish (and manage) to remain in friendly touch with such teachers as are your moral creditors.

Well, if you do want to give a present to a teacher . . . get your bookseller to send to England for a volume called "Chalk in My Hair." It is published by Benn at ten shillings and sixpence, and is still in print. The author wisely remains anonymous, calling himself "Balaam." He wrote a second book about teaching called "Chalk Get in Your Eyes," but while it is excellent, the first one, "Chalk in My Hair," is even better. So if you want only one, get the first.

HARKEN to a few words from the preface: "All teachers go mad in the end, though some take longer than others. It has taken me about twenty years. During this time I have taught in every type of secondary school. I have taught student-teachers; I have taught in evening schools and technical colleges; I have even taught in a boarding school, the lowest form of servitude known to man."

"I am rather bewildered when I read some books on Education for the authors seem to be writing about something that is altogether remote from the schools I have known. Headmasters, like the London police, appear to be a magnificent body of men, doing a wonderful work; teachers (though underpaid) are all inspired with a real love for their work and see Education as a Great Adventure; the children all long to be educated, and cry if they are left at home; and by a mysterious kind of magic, known as the Teachers' Influence, all the ills from which society is suffering will quite shortly be healed."

"It is an interesting picture, but I don't recognize it. In the schools I have known, the teachers are often bad-tempered, impatient and bored, and are occasionally heard to curse their pupils in the classroom and more than occasionally in the staff room, while some of the pupils are frequently and deliberately a damned nuisance."

"I THINK it is a pity that writers on Education do not more frequently submit themselves to the corrective of several years of class teaching. They are often a little shy of doing this. Without such a corrective it is so easy to write (for instance): 'We must see to it that all our children retain their interest in all things cultural,' and then imagine, because the aim is so obviously desirable, that the thing is as good as done. But it isn't. I have been doing my best for a good many years to interest pupils in things cultural, and sometimes I think I have achieved just a little."

The author then gives a few examples of rare and untypical signs of interest in a boy here and a boy there. These moments are rewarding, and if they are infrequent they are appreciated all the more for that. But as he says, "it would be foolish to pretend that such fleeting moments of half-hope represent a firm conviction that every pupil is becoming a devotee of culture. These moments are the peaks, not the normal level, and a teacher who thinks otherwise is kidding himself."

"THE fact is that any good which a teacher can achieve is usually so very oblique, so filtered through a daily routine of commonplace duties and tedious difficulties, that it is mostly invisible and the teacher often wonders if it is there at all. The ordinary classroom practitioner is convinced that half the time he is just banging his head against the wall. Perhaps that is why in the end he goes off his head. This book is the story of how I went off my head, with my opinions on the process. Perhaps I sometimes deviate into sense."

Well, it is a fascinating story, often as amusing as it is alarming or depressing. And if you think "Oh well, it is only about British schools, it can't have much application here," you are wrong.

THE demon of progress is everywhere, and since there can only be a very limited number of progressive ideas, it is not surprising that British schools show a good deal of third-generation Deweyism, or that our schools should utter faint Bertrand Russellings. And children and teachers everywhere find themselves basically in the same situation, however the trimmings may differ.

As for trimmings, one of the best stories in the book is about a progressive young teacher who daily began each lesson with an appropriate gramophone record, for atmosphere. Even a botany lesson would begin with "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," and a lesson on India with "Hold That Tiger!"

As Our Readers See It

Light on the Subject

In your paper of Monday, March 19, A. S. Averill takes issue against a correspondent regarding Birmingham housing, then carries on to credit Thomas Edison with the invention of the electric light.

If only he had carried on with the good work of giving credit to whom credit is due, I would not need to write this letter. How is it I wonder that so many people in this part of the world do this same? Can it be those American textbooks again?

Incandescent electric light was invented by an Englishman, Mr. John Swan, who was afterwards knighted. His working model was exhibited at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., on Dec. 19, 1878, whereas Edison's lamp was brought out 10 months later, Oct. 21, 1879.

Care of Elderly

May I through your paper commend the Union Board of Health in their endeavor to obtain the buildings at William Head to provide care for certain elderly people?

I fully agree that for some elderly people the need is low-rental homes, however, there are others—whose physical and mental condition necessitate that they have constant supervision and some nursing care.

A special unit was built at Essondale for this type of care but it so soon became filled that it is now restricted to those who become violent.

Care of the non-violent cases must be provided in the homes of their children or, when this is not possible, in private homes licensed and checked by government social service workers as to suitability and cleanliness. It would appear most of these homes are run by either spinsters or widows trying to make a living. There is no feeling of permanency or security in these homes.

Monthly board can be increased $10 without previous notice even when the board has already been paid and in advance. Twenty-four hours notice to remove an elderly person can be given and then, when their family arrive, the matron offers to keep the person, provided another $25 a month is paid.

The excuse given for such increases is that the elderly person is considered "a nuisance." Only docile people are desired.

In fairness to these matrons, they are on call 24 hours a day and, as they are in business to make money, it is a temptation to take in as many elderly people as possible.

When these elderly people are taken care of by their children and three generations must live under one roof there are many problems and limitations for everyone which, sometimes, do not make for as happy a home as one could desire. Twenty-four hours a day responsibility must be shouldered by the younger people—Grandpa and Grandma-sitters at even harder to find than baby-sitters.

William Head is only 17 miles out on a good road and if the Union Board of Health runs the home and an auxiliary formed, the auxiliary would, no doubt, provide transportation for those elderly people, who needed or were able to come to town.

Better medical care could be provided by doctors specializing in sicknesses of elderly people.

A fuller social life could be enjoyed by the old people as many service clubs would be pleased to entertain such a group.

The best life insurance any of us younger people can provide for our old age is to do now all we possibly can to see that all elderly people are treated with consideration and dignity—we will all be old someday if we live long enough—it is inevitable.

Symbolic

In more than 100 Baha'i communities throughout Canada the Feast of Naw Ruz, marking the beginning of the Baha'i Year 112 was celebrated on March 21. The Baha'i New Year begins at the turn of the vernal equinox on March 21, and its celebration is symbolic of the coming of springtime and the renewal of life. The revelation of a world religion released spiritual energy to mankind comparable to new growth with the arrival of spring.

Baha'is believe that 112 years ago the founder of their Faith, Baha'u'llah, brought a new spiritual impetus to man by spreading a new spring sunlight. A revival of man's spiritual, social, and political life, he taught, would come about when man embraced the teaching of the essential oneness of all revealed religions and the spiritual and political unity of all races and creeds in peace and harmony. These teachings, the Baha'is say, mark the springtime of a new spiritual consciousness in the world, new spiritual consciousness in the world.

In over 100 Canadian communities Baha'is teach from the writings of Baha'u'llah, condemning all prejudice, social, racial or religious, asserting that science and religion must agree, and stressing the need for universal education and a world government.

The Historic Objectives

BY WALTER LIPPMANN, From Washington

WE do not know very much about the off-the-record speech against Stalin which Khrushchev made to the Communist Congress. But there is no doubt that the present Soviet rulers have long been determined to destroy Stalin's reputation. There is nothing implausible in their picture of themselves as men who served Stalin because they were terrorized by him. Nor is it in the least improbable that in the Russian revolution, as in other revolutions before it, the period of terrorism comes at long last to an end, once the great tyrant disappears.

The news which is so meager but yet so fascinating raises many questions to which we should like to know the answers. We should like to know what it is that has impelled Khrushchev to launch such a big and spectacular campaign of defamation.

Why has he done that when, with his control of the Soviet press, he could have gone on ignoring Stalin, not mentioning his name, and letting Stalin's memory fade out? What has made the anti-Stalinist campaign necessary at this time?

Outside Opinion

It does not seem to me at all likely that Khrushchev has undertaken this campaign to win the good opinion of the non-Communist world. I say primarily because it is plain enough that the open disavowal of Stalin will have a big effect on European and Asian opinion.

The Stalinist dictatorship and the reign of terror were originally the main reason for the break between the Soviet Communist orbit and the Stalinist movements in the Western democracies. If Khrushchev can convince the non-Communist Socialists and indeed the parties of the left that the new rulers of Russia have broken with Stalin, he will have removed a powerful psychological block to the revival of the policy of collaboration in a popular front.

Yet, while anti-Stalinism serves the present policy of the Kremlin, it seems to me most improbable that Khrushchev would be doing anything so dangerous solely because it is good propaganda abroad. The Soviet propaganda abroad has been working effectively on the line of not mentioning Stalin, and the propaganda could have gotten along without this outright deliberate destruction of Stalin's image.

Inside Developments

There must be developments in the heart of the Soviet Union itself, and indeed within the Communist Party itself, which account for what is now being done.

We do not know, however, what these developments are. We can only guess, or rather assume, that Khrushchev's main motive is somehow that the destruction of the Stalin legend is necessary to the survival of the Khrushchev oligarchy.

It is a temptation to make a guess that the outcome of what is happening in the Soviet regime is likely to be some kind of authoritarian military system, of which the hard core would be the army rather than the party. When Stalin died, this was the view of many of the best students of the Soviet system.

There is evidence, however, to the contrary. I have been told by men, not Americans, who saw a great deal of Khrushchev, Bulganin, Zhukov and Molotov at the Summit meeting in Geneva, that Marshal Zhukov was treated as a distinct inferior, and that there was no doubt that the party leaders were on top.

The present anti-Stalin campaign may not, therefore, stem from the military leaders. But we may ask ourselves whether in the long run Khrushchev and the party leaders, having destroyed the legend of the dictatorship, can maintain enough authority and discipline to rule the Soviet empire.

There is a great risk for the Communist Party in the Kremlin campaign to destroy the legend of Stalin's infallibility, to teach the people that it would have been desirable, had it been possible, to overthrow the defiled master of the Communist world.

This campaign is teaching the Russians that there might be good reason to rebel against Communist authority. We must not, therefore, rule out the possibility that the military men will become more powerful in the government if the party authority weakens.

The military men will, of course, become more powerful in the realm of foreign relations. They may already be. It is often said, quite rightly, that though the tactics may change, the goals of Soviet policy do not change.

This is undoubtedly so true of the immediate concrete goals of Soviet policy that one may say that these goals would be what they are if the Communist rulers were replaced by Russian nationalists.

Certain Goals

There are certain fundamental goals of Russian policy which are much older than the Communist regime.

The present line of the iron curtain in Europe, which means the domination of Eastern Europe from Moscow, has been, at least a dream of Russian policy for a hundred years. All Russian governments have insisted on the domination of Poland, and all have worked toward the domination of the Danube Valley and of the Balkan peninsula.

The drive of the Russian empire into the Middle East and toward the Indian Ocean was not invented by the Communists. It reflects a deep and lasting Russian hope and ambition. The same can be said of the Russian ambition to dominate the neighborhood of Eastern Siberia as against Japan and as against China.

The point I wish to make is that the goals of Russian policy are not primarily Communist and that they will not be altered no matter how much the regime inside Russia becomes altered. Indeed the more the internal regime is Russian, nationalist and patriotic rather than Marxist and doctrinaire, the more we may count on the Russian state pursuing stubbornly and tenaciously the old Russian objectives in Eastern Europe, in the Middle and Far East.

Never Heard of Them

LONDON—Film star Eunice Gayson has caused quite a flutter here by tearing up her seven-year contract with the J. Arthur Rank Organization. She said they were not giving her enough work and she wanted her release so that she could look elsewhere.

For you over on the other side, it is probably news that she is a film star. In fact I am sure that although she is a familiar name here you never have heard of her. That is a characteristic of Britain's feminine stars today. Looking them over, there is hardly one of them worth a pinch of salt on the international scene.

Just recently Rank announced their $3-million production program for this year and who are the gals expected to pull the cash customers into the cinema? Belinda Lee, Susan Bealmon, Maureen Swanson, Jill Ireland, Josephine Griffin, Julia Arnall, Virginia McKenna. Ever heard of any of them?

I haven't listed girls playing minor parts. These are the BIG female stars in their major films for 1956. There isn't one of them with stature of a bit player in an average Hollywood movie. Yet that is all that Rank, by far the biggest movie outfit in this country, can offer world moviegoers.

Eunice Gayson's walkout has sparked conjecture here as to what is wrong with the British movie industry in general and the Rank organization in particular. They have all these little starlets signed up, usually on seven-year contracts, and apparently do nothing about them.

This has been going on for some time. Take their line-up of top feminine stars of ten years ago. In 1946 their so-called big names were: Rosmound John, Valeria Hobson, Patricia Roc, Judy Campbell, Jean Simmons, Jean Kent and Sally Grey. These were the girls who featured in all their major films of that period. And what of them today? All forgotten at the box office. Except for Jean Simmons—thanks to Hollywood.

And there, with the mention of Hollywood, you have the answer. Hollywood signs up dozens of girls on long-term contracts. Many of them fall by the wayside. But those who show they've got drawing power are built up into really bigtimers like Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Lana Turner, Claudette Colbert, Betty Grable, Barbara Stanwyck, Katherine Hepburn, Ava Gardner, etc., etc. Names that draw at the box office and keep on drawing year after year.

But can you name one single British actress in a British film who would draw you to a movie house on her name alone? Not one.

You would be attracted to Hollywood-made English stars such as Audrey Hepburn, Elizabeth Taylor, Vivien Leigh, Deborah Kerr, Greer Garson and Joan Collins. But the key phrase there is "Hollywood-made."

Some of the movie girls operating here have what it takes. For instance, Diana Dors has all the Marilyn Monroe dynamite and this newcomer Maureen Swanson could be terrific if exploited properly. But if Hollywood doesn't take up these and others of the girls they'll never get anywhere internationally under British movie rule.

What's wrong here? The debaters put forward various probable reasons. British producers prefer selling a good story to selling stars. They are afraid of sex—telling a pretty girl to behave romantically makes the English film man a trifle self-conscious. The Rank organization is bossed by John Davis, an accountant—not a showman.

Whatever the reason, British movie-makers just don't seem to have the hang of building feminine stars. Maybe when movie boss Marilyn Monroe comes over here next month to make her new film she'll be able to show them some pointers.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

The Treatment of Gout

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

In a recent article, Doctors William C. Kuzell, Ralph W. Schaffartzik, W. Edward Naugler, Peter Koets, Eldon A. Mandie, Beverly Brown, and Barbara Champlin, of Stanford University, described the present-day treatment of gout. Gout is not as rare as we used to think it was. It is characterized by acute, sudden and often very painful attacks of arthritis, commonly in one joint, and usually in the big toe joint.

Following an attack, the patient may be normal for quite a while, and then suddenly he will go into another spell. The trouble is usually due to a hereditary difficulty the body has in handling certain substances which turn into uric acid. The disease occurs much more often in men than in women. It can occur in men who drink more alcohol than they need, and in men who eat much more than they should. But there is not only the "rich-man's gout," there is also a "poor man's gout."

Unfortunately, the diagnosis is often missed because we physicians are not trained to think of gout as often as we should. Sometimes the doctor can diagnose gout in a minute by noticing little white masses of uric acid crystals under the skin of an ear or an elbow. Any man past middle age who wakes around two in the morning with terrific pain and red swelling in one big toe joint should know he almost certainly has the gout.

In cases of doubt, the doctor will get a laboratory worker to measure the amount of uric acid in the blood. Usually in gout this reading is elevated and somewhere between 5 and 9 mg. Instead of the usual 1 to 4 mg. Sometimes these people have some albumen in the urine, or some eczema, or stones in the kidney, or buritis of a shoulder joint. In one in five cases the patient has a relative who suffers with gout.

As I walk through public parks it saddens me to see that most of the statues on pedestals are of men whose only virtue was that they were experts in the mass killing of their fellows. Only rarely do I find a statue of a man like Pasteur, who probably did more for humanity than did any other man who ever lived. No one erects a memorial to Dr. Morton who did most to give us the great boon of anesthesia in surgery, or to Lord Lister who made modern surgery possible, or to Domagk, who found the sulfa drugs.

Many causes. An attack is likely to come when the patient has been ill with a bad cold, or when he hasn't eaten much for several days, or when he has exercised too much, or when he has been on a long ride on a train or plane, or has had an operation, or has been confined in bed for a while. He may get an attack after eating and drinking too much, or taking a mercurial diuretic which makes his kidneys function more actively, or after taking liver extract or ACTH.

One can be pretty sure of the diagnosis if an acute spell calms down quickly under the influence of a drug such as phenylbutazone or colchicine or corticotropin or probenecid.

The patient suffering from gout will do well to live on a just-adequate diet, relatively high in protein and low in carbohydrates. He can eat meat but not too much starch or fat. He must be particularly careful not to eat liver, kidneys or sweetbreads which are full of the substance which turns into uric acid in the body. He should avoid also meat extracts, gravies, chocolate, cola drinks, beer, wine, ale, asparagus, peas and dried beans.

THE SPIRIT OF SCIENCE

There is still great need today for explaining to laymen why scientists take vows of poverty, much as a priest does, and why they spend their days in a laboratory searching for the answers to certain questions. Often these researches seem to be of little if any use but some day, all of a sudden, some discovery they have made will turn out to have enormous value.

For instance, Dr. Fleming in his little pathological laboratory tried to find why bacteria did not grow in the zone immediately surrounding a colony of a mold. Every housewife has seen such colonies on the top of some of her jars of jam. Fleming realized that a substance was seeping out from the colony to keep bacteria from growing. All bacteriologists must have noticed this phenomenon a hundred times, but he was the only one to see that there might be a chemical there, which, if isolated and injected into the body of a man, might save his life from some severe infection. Eventually, he found penicillin. It was purified by Dr. Florey and others, and by now it must have saved millions of lives.

As I walk through public parks it saddens me to see that most of the statues on pedestals are of men whose only virtue was that they were experts in the mass killing of their fellows. Only rarely do I find a statue of a man like Pasteur, who probably did more for humanity than did any other man who ever lived. No one erects a memorial to Dr. Morton who did most to give us the great boon of anesthesia in surgery, or to Lord Lister who made modern surgery possible, or to Domagk, who found the sulfa drugs.

B.C. superintendent of lands has advised city council its request for a lease on Industrial Reserve property for a heliport has been approved and a 21-year lease is available.

First rental of $132.50 is due April 3. Council referred the letter to finance committee.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Lime Will Damage Acid-Loving Plants

The home gardener who is growing even a few of the acid-loving plants must be careful not to have any lime where it will be washed into the root area of the plants.

Among the acid-loving shrubs most commonly grown in the Victoria vicinity are rhododendron, including azalea, kalmia (calico bush, or mountain laurel), heathers other than the winter flowering Erica carnea and its varieties, and camellia. Signs of acid deficiency will be noted in the yellowing of the foliage of these plants, many of which are classified as broad-leaved evergreens.

The addition of a specially prepared acid fertilizer sold as acid-mix, will correct the condition. Mulching the root area with peat moss is also recommended.

On the other hand, are many flowering annuals and most of the vegetables which will not tolerate an acid soil, preferring either a neutral or somewhat alkaline (limey) soil. One frequently sees gardens where the following annuals look weak and sickly, and the owner complains of not being able to grow vegetables at the Sweet alyssum, carnation and the dianthus family, geranium, phlox, sweet pea, and wallflowers. Do not attempt these in a decidedly acid soil.

Know your plants, and keep the acid lovers and the lime lovers in separate parts of the garden.

Vancouver Tax Total Stays at 1955 Level

VANCOUVER (CP) — City taxes will remain at nearly the same level as last year, comptroller Frank Jones said today in presenting Vancouver's 1956 budget to council.

The amount to be collected in general purpose taxes will be the same as last year—$16,574,000. Individual levies will depend on changes in assessments. Increases in assessments have been offset by the first mill rate cut since 1935—by more than five mills to 37.82.

Expenditure is estimated at a record $40,600,000, up $2,500,000 from 1955. School costs are estimated at $9,064,000 and the rest will go to general accounts.

The city also has a $1,000,000 surplus from last year.

Wicks Seeks Ottawa Ruling In Zucco Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said Thursday he will discuss with officials in Ottawa the claim for a silicosis pension by former miner Jack Zucco of New Westminster.

Mr. Zucco's wife and three of his four children staged two sit-down strikes, one at the workmen's compensation board here and the other in front of the legislative buildings in Victoria, to protest that an application for pension had been refused. Officials said X-rays showed no signs of silicosis in Mr. Zucco's lungs but his wife said tuberculosis obscured signs of the other disease.

"I intend to see the specialists dealing with the case on my next visit east and find out exactly what the position is," Mr. Wicks said.

Cowichan Lake Dam Approval Indicated

LAKE COWICHAN—Strong possibility that B.C. Forest Products Ltd. will be allowed to raise the low-water level of Cowichan Lake for water storage purposes was indicated here Thursday by A. F. Paget, provincial water rights controller.

He spoke at a public meeting on the company's application to build a weir at the lower end of the lake to store 32,000 acre-feet of water for its $36,000,000 pulp mill to be built at Crofton.

A firm decision on the application is expected from Mr. Paget shortly.

The water will be drawn off only in the summer months when the river flow is not sufficient to meet the needs of the mill.

Mr. Paget said after the hearing that objections to the project did not appear sufficiently strong to block the application.

William Tindale, engineering consultant for the company, said the top of the weir would be three feet above summer low water mark, and seven feet below the winter flood level.

There would be provision against raising of the flood level, he said.

FLOOD PROBLEM
Protests were made by seven residents, but they were concerned mainly with flood conditions on the river, and did not properly belong at the hearing, Mr. Paget said. He will recommend, however, a committee be established to study

North Cowichan council has granted permission to students of Ladysmith senior high school to hold a tag day here Saturday.

Proceeds from the tag day will go toward a fund being raised to send the school's juvenile basketball team to the B.C. finals in the Easter holidays.

$5,000 Loans Available To Growers

The provincial government will allow a maximum loan of $5,000 for five years to farmers, nurserymen and small fruit growers who suffered losses caused by severe November frosts, an order-in-council revealed today.

Interest will be not more than 5 1/2 per cent, payable annually. Interest on the loan must be paid back the first year, and not less than the interest and one-eighth of the loan must be paid back the second year. Remainder of 'w' money can be repaid over the final three years.

LONG-TERM VIEW

Small fruit growers should concentrate on propagating new stocks this year and not try to take advantage of high prices resulting from severe frosts last November. Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiermar, said Thursday.

This, he said, was the only way the industry could get back on its feet.

"We hope the industry will take the long-term view," he said. There used to be 2,000 acres of strawberries in B.C. and there is now less than half this acreage.

BANK RULES TO GOVERN Tighter Credit Looms For Extended Firms

Firms which have borrowed their limits at the chartered banks are going to have difficulty expanding or extending their lines of credit with member-firms of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association of B.C.

A panel discussion at the organization's annual meeting, now in progress here, decided Thursday that credit men should not grant additional credit to such firms.

Effect of enlarging those lines of credit would be to nullify the Bank of Canada's current curb on borrowings, one of the federal government's moves against an inflationary economy.

It was also agreed that past paying habits of companies should not be the basis of credit decisions but rather the financial structure of the applicant. City manager C. C. Wyatt

Saanich To Call School Bids

SIDNEY — School board of District 63, including Sidney and the Saanich Peninsula, will call for its first tenders under a new construction by-law in about two weeks.

The $712,000 by-law passed comfortably Nov. 5 after a previous by-law had failed. Projects will be construction of an activity room at Sidney school for an estimated $32,800; activity room and two classrooms at Brentwood school, $56,000; new three-room school at Deep Cove, $29,400.

OTTAWA SKEPTICAL

Reds Infiltrate Forces—Alsbury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor leader Tom Alsbury told an audience of RCAF personnel here Thursday night that Communists are carrying on subversive activities within the Canadian armed forces "at this very moment."

Mr. Alsbury, president of Vancouver Trades and Labor Council (TLC), and principal of Fairview High School of Commerce, was speaking at Sea Island RCAF station. He said: "Communists carried on subversive activities in the Canadian Army in the Second World War. Of that we have ample proof. And they are doing it this minute."

The man who has several times come close to being Vancouver's mayor on a CCF ticket said "it is later than we think with half of Europe, much of Asia . . . about 1,000,000,000 people—already behind the Iron Curtain."

"Communists infiltrate the armed services as well as unions and other groups."

BAD FOR MORALE

"If war or some other national emergency comes, the Reds are ready to fight on two major fronts—military and industrial."

"The Reds have penetrated the Canadian armed service forces where party members are already in uniform, taking instructions directly from the party and reporting secretly their progress and successes."

Mr. Alsbury said these were not merely his opinions, but could be verified in official records. He said the Reds "constantly seek by subtle methods to spread disaffection in the armed forces, to break down morale and to turn the service men against their own country."

At Ottawa, a defence department spokesman said he wishes Mr. Alsbury would let the department know who and where the subversives are.

He added that the Communists are trying to subvert all organizations, but that the department didn't know of any Red agents in the armed forces.

If Mr. Alsbury has any concrete evidence, he should give it to the department.

Crews Move Ahead On B.C. Gasline

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — More than 23 miles of the Westcoast Transmission's natural gas pipeline right-of-way has been cleared, company officials have announced.

With warmer weather the line is advancing 2 1/2 miles daily and more than 150 men are employed on the project.

The company's program calls for clearing of 70 miles by May 1 and the remaining 30 miles by Aug. 1.

Work has been slowed by deep snow which prevents heavy equipment from operating.

Victoria Symphony Orchestra Fourth in Calibre in Canada

Victoria's biggest and best season is expected to rise to city that does not contribute to symphony season in its 16-year about 20 cents. Victoria is the only Canadian city hall.

The last two concerts are scheduled for Sunday at 3:30 p.m. and Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Royal Theatre.

The season from October to March has been the largest in symphony ticket sales, and this took place in the face of reduced attendance in other entertainment fields.

Average attendance in large cities is from one-half to three-quarters per cent of the population. Attendance from Greater Victoria is two per cent and from the city itself close to four per cent. In Vancouver it is about one-half of one per cent.

On a per capita basis Greater Victoria has the largest concert-going public of any city on the continent.

RATED FOURTH

Although Victoria ranks 13th in size as a city, and most have symphonies, the symphony here is rated fourth in calibre. It plays the longest season after Toronto and Montreal.

Next season here there will be 10 pairs of concerts and five student concerts, compared with the eight pairs of the season just ending.

Special concerts put on at Butchart Gardens have drawn as many as 5,000 persons. No other musical event in Toronto and Montreal comes close.

Cost per capita to maintain a symphony elsewhere is 50 cents; here it is about 15 cents yearly, and with the enlarged

New City Zoning By-Law Swamped by Objections

Measure, 5 Years in the Making, Held Up After Long Public Hearing

Victoria's proposed new zoning by-law was tossed back into the lap of a council committee Wednesday following a lengthy public hearing.

The referral came after council heard 13 submissions, all but two of which opposed sections of the by-law which has been in production now for over five years.

The action dashed hopes of town planners and most aldermen that final passage was imminent.

It brought wry comment from acting chairman of the town planning commission Hugh Stephen, "We've been at this for five years... if we try to please everybody, we'll be at it 105 years."

Chief Objections

Main sections of the by-law under attack were those which would halt apartment construction in the path of proposed legislative buildings; those which order off-street parking be provided by all new construction; those which lay down set-backs for new apartment building, and those which would change an area between Garbally and Glassford on the north side of Gorge Road from single-family zoning to light industrial.

These sections of the by-law will be given study by council as a committee of the whole at a time and date to be set by the mayor. Another section, which followed amendments to the present by-law and sets up a special district for Cherry Bank Hotel, will be studied by a special committee.

This will comprise Aldermen W. F. Pinfold, Arthur Dowell and Austin Curtis. They will give special extended hearing to submissions by W. H. M. Haldane, QC, who is reopening a fight to outlaw dining room privileges to the public at Cherry Bank Hotel.

His argument was prefaced with a detailed account of council action last year with respect to Cherry Bank.

Special District

In April 1955, he said, a by-law was introduced classifying the hotel as a special district and thus permitting licensing of a dining room. The hotel was already possessor of a license as a liquor outlet and some residents in the surrounding residential area made objection.

Mr. Haldane was appointed to represent them and appeared before council with a brief. Later he was advised the Cherry Bank was eliminated from the permissive provisions of the by-law which approved licensing of two other James Bay hotels.

In September a new attempt was made to obtain a dining room license through rezoning. Another hearing was held and Mr. Haldane said he then wrote council in detail and sent various documents. The letter and documents were referred to a town planning committee of council for study and report.

Mr. Haldane said no report was ever made to council and the zoning amendment was suddenly passed in favor of the Cherry Bank.

Trouble Foreseen

Former mayor C. L. Harrison told council at the time the matter was settled before the end of the year. Council had already heard long briefs from both sides of the question and in the mayor's words, "an extraordinary conflict of evidence" had occurred.

"You'd have to hear it all over again," warned Mayor Harrison, if the matter was delayed. Council passed it.

Mr. Haldane gained support of Ald. Pinfold who said if the committee never made report to council, then the new council is justified in reopening the matter.

During the discussion, Mr. Haldane repeated the scene played last year in council and Manchester, objected to the possibility that industry will in fringe on her holdings.

C. D. Chunganis, 655 Toronto, said his family has owned the same house for 60 years and he too planned an apartment conversion.

Builder A. K. Smalley will apparently be the biggest loser if the by-law passes. He plans a $400,000, six-storey apartment, but under the proposed zoning regulations he finds the size of his building reduced by one-half, due to set-back regulations.

Alderman Ruled Out

"Ald. Smith is not entitled to take any part in this discussion," said the lawyer. He said the hotel is now owned by Cherry Bank Holdings subject to a mortgage held by Commonwealth Mortgage Company of which the alderman is a director.

"To keep pace in the family I'll be very happy to leave my seat," said Ald. Smith.

Mr. Haldane's submission was the longest of the long meeting—a record for council this year and last. The session lasted four-and-a-half hours. But other speakers were as earnest and sometimes more heated in their condemnation of the proposed by-law.

The audience of about 60 applauded after a brief was submitted by Victoria lawyer, Saanich councillor Ron Grant. He represented apartment owner and former alderman candidate Arthur Kingsley and other property holders on the north side of Gorge Road where a light industrial area is proposed.

Well-Kent Homes

Mr. Grant told council the area in question is one of well-kept homes and there was no necessity to open it to industry. He pointed out that light industrial areas in James Bay and Victoria West had ample room still for light industry.

Another lawyer, Hugh Botterell, opposed Mr. Grant and on behalf of Stewart and Hudson Ltd., called on council to pass the by-law as intended. He said the area adjoining that which is planned for rezoning is industrial in character. He said Stewart and Hudson wished to build on property north of Gorge Road, which he called "a pocket in an industrial area unattractive for residential purposes."

"Unless industry can expand, city revenues will suffer," he warned council. He said the firm was centre of an island-wide operation with 54 people employed here and a payroll of $200,000.

Request by Industry

Town planner Stephen pointed out to council the TPC wanted the area to remain residential in area originally and had given the matter second thought only when council suggested it, after a request from industry.

Architectural Institute of B.C. speakers P. F. Birley and Harry Pickstone did not press their brief for relief in the by-law from off-street parking regulations and set-back regulations, when it was pointed out the TPC, as announced Wednesday, was willing to exempt the downtown area from the off-street parking provisions.

Council is expected to amend the by-law to that degree before final passing.

A parade of small property holders not represented by professional legal experts appeared with short pithy briefs.

Individual Cases

Miss Iona Porter said her family has paid taxes for 50 years on a home on Superior Street. Now, if the by-law passes it would be devalued because of the apartment ban.

L. McAlpine, 634 Michigan, said he has saved for years to extend his apartment house over an adjoining lot. If the by-law passes, his hands are tied.

John Ondie, 633 Michigan, also has eventual plans for an apartment and sees his property devaluated if that course does not remain open. Mrs. Bertha Parsons, homeowner on Manchester, objected to the possibility that industry will in fringe on her holdings.

C. D. Chunganis, 655 Toronto, said his family has owned the same house for 60 years and he too planned an apartment conversion.

Builder A. K. Smalley will apparently be the biggest loser if the by-law passes. He plans a $400,000, six-storey apartment, but under the proposed zoning regulations he finds the size of his building reduced by one-half, due to set-back regulations.

Town Planner's View

Town planning spokesman Mr. Stephen ended the hearing with the admonition to council: "We are in sympathy (with the petitioners) but you have charged us with taking future welfare of the city as a whole into consideration. We are not authorized to facilitate capital appreciation of property."

He said parking shouldn't have to be solved at the expense of taxpayers generally and it was up to apartment builders to solve their own parking problem.

With regard to the James Bay area, he said the government had completed two plans for eventual extension and until the city knows whether the extension will be toward Beacon Hill Park—it would not be fair to permit anyone to build an apartment in that path. It might be expropriated.

He said the by-law generally was less restrictive than that of Vancouver and other cities on the continent used as models.

Vancouver Chief In Appeal for Police Recruits

VANCOUVER (CP)—An appeal for recruits was made today by Police Chief George A. Archer on a written statement.

Chief Archer said the department was almost 60 officers below its authorized strength of 782—including a recently-granted increase.

"This is a sound force, and its efficiency will always depend to quite an extent upon the availability of recruits so that a fair degree of selectivity can be maintained," he said.

"The job of policeman is, in my opinion, more than mere employment; it is a first-class work—and with the Vancouver force, exceptional work."

Water Strike Assures School Site

DUNCAN — Department of Education approval for Cowichan School District's new secondary school site near Mill Bay appears assured.

It was reported this week a drilled water well at the proposed site was supplying 7,200 gallons a day. The well is 120 feet deep, through rock.

The department had declined to approve the site until there was some guarantee of an adequate supply of water—about 5,000 gallons a day for the six-room school.

Cowichan School Board also approved plans for additions to Glenora and Sahlam rural elementary schools and will call for tenders on the jobs immediately. The board's solicitor was instructed to secure options on additional land adjoining both the present school sites.

PARKS PLAN ACCLAIMED

Thetis, Goldstream to Fill Need

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Public opinion today is overwhelmingly in favor of the provincial government taking over Thetis Lake and Goldstream Parks from the city.

This is evident from the reaction to an announcement Wednesday by Mayor Percy Scourrah that the provincial government likely will take over the two areas for development into natural parks.

The mayor, who conferred with Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, said the government's decision will be made within two weeks.

Service, recreational and fish and game clubs all commended the city council's proposal to turn the areas over to the government for development into a capital regional park.

GYROS HAPPY

"I would welcome the news that the provincial government would take over the Thetis and Goldstream Parks," said Herbert Brown, president of the Gyro Club. "It would be a great pity if these sites were lost as recreational areas. Once they are gone they can never be replaced."

Mr. Brown said it is unlikely that the city would be in the position to develop the two areas for many years.

Ray Ritchie, president of the Amalgamated Lower Island Sportsmen's Association, and Gordon Sward, an official of the South Vancouver Island Rangers, said Thetis Lake is a natural recreational area which would benefit the whole of South Vancouver Island.

"The Rangers are in favor of the government developing natural parks near cities and within easy reach of the public," said Mr. Sward. "We have too many of these far-away parks. They are of little benefit to youngsters or grown-ups."

Donald Wagg, architect, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, said the government should take over the two areas.

"Thetis Lake has hiking and swimming facilities and could be developed into a first class park."

"Thetis Lake is important as a park for the whole of the region," commented Brahmsman, director of the Capital Regional Planning Board.

Mr. Wiesman said he felt that Victoria would soon have to consider developing a green belt around the city to maintain the beauty of its surroundings. This would be a start, he said.

George Chatterton, director of the Community Planning Association, said the development of the two parks by the government would be of "tourist value."

"Tourists don't come to Victoria to see bright lights," he said. "They see plenty of that in their own towns."

But Mr. Chatterton expressed hope the government would "dedicate" the parks so that they could never be used for any other purpose. The parks should be dedicated by an act of parliament, he said.

Saanich councillor Ronald Grant also favors the scheme, especially with regard to the Goldstream area.

WITHIN THE COMMONWEALTH

Pakistan Becomes Islamic Republic

KARACHI (AP)—Pakistan today formally became a republic within the British Commonwealth, amid joyful prayer and glittering ceremony.

Henceforth the Asian state of 80,000,000 people—85 per cent of them Moslems—will be known as the Islamic Republic of Pakistan. Like India, it does not pay allegiance to the crown but accepts it as the symbol of its "free association" with the other Commonwealth members.

In an impressive ceremony at Karachi, Maj. Gen. Iskander Mirza, until Thursday governor-general of the Dominion of Pakistan, was sworn in as the new republic's first president. Some 50 special foreign envoys represented virtually every major country at the event.

CANADA REPRESENTED

T. C. Davis, Canadian ambassador to Japan, flew here for today's ceremonies. Prime Minister St. Laurent cabled congratulations from Ottawa, saying "we are most happy that Pakistan has expressed its intention to continue its full membership as a Commonwealth nation, and we in Canada took forward to many years of friendly and fruitful co-operation."

Throughout Pakistan, thanksgiving prayers were offered by Moslems and non-Moslems. Free food and clothing were distributed to the poor, and a number of death sentences were commuted.

Pakistan was voted a republic

Transmission Line Tenders Called

Tenders were called today by the B.C. Power Commission for building of a transmission line from the John Hart generating station at Campbell River to the Dunsmuir switching station, a distance of 35 miles.

Tenders will be opened at the commission offices at 2 p.m., April 18.

Butchering Facilities To Be Set Up

Setting up of a slaughterhouse and meat inspection centre for local farmers was announced by Mayor Percy Scurrell Wednesday just in time to avert an attempt to repeal the new meat inspection by-law.

The recent by-law, backed by provincial legislation, bars from Victoria meats not approved and stamped by a qualified inspector. It goes into effect May 1.

ASKS REPEAL

Ald. M. H. Mooney asked council to repeal the by-law when he learned the province did not intend to set up the inspection centre. He said he would never have supported the by-law had he known it would work a hardship on local farmers.

Mayor Scurrell said he was advised by city sanitary inspector Elwood Groppe that Henry Chung plans to set up a meat inspection centre as a private business. Inspectors must be qualified veterinarians and approved by the minister of agriculture.

Ald. Mooney's motion for repeal was tabled until council obtains more information on the subject from the Victoria-Esquimalt board of health. Council will also poll local butchers on the by-law.

Round-Robin Hoop Trials Set Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP).—A fast break and a wealth of experience will be turned loose here Friday night when the Manitoba Buffaloes tackle the Alberta Towne Hallers in the first game of the Canadian Olympic basketball finals.

The Buffaloes arrived in town Wednesday night and rode through town with a police motorcycle escort.

The Towne Hallers arrived here Thursday and had scheduled only one workout before meeting the Buffaloes.

Toronto Nortowne and British Columbia Totems will meet in the other end of the opening double-header.

The four-team tourney for the Canadian championship and the right to represent Canada at the Olympics in Melbourne this year is a round-robin double knock-out affair.

Coach Ralph Watts of the Buffaloes and six of his team represented Canada at the Pan-American Games in Rio de Janeiro in 1953 as members of the Winnipeg Paulins. Carl Ridd was named to the second all-star team at the games.

Ridd also appeared in a Canadian uniform at the Olympics in Helsinki in 1952.

Herb Olafson, who won the Winnipeg Senior League scoring championship this year, and was also a member of the 1953 Paulins, said: "We have the material and we have Ridd. Carl is as good as ever."

Towne Hallers will play a 38.4 per cent shooting average on the line against the Buffaloes. They have converted 63.3 per cent of all foul shots and boast a scoring average of 70.7 points a game.

TIME OUT! BY JEFF KEATE

Bears Keep Rugby Cup

VANCOUVER (CP).—The University of California Golden Bears retained the World Cup here Thursday in the third game of the annual English rugby series with the University of British Columbia by holding the hometown Thunderbirds to a 6-6 draw.

The Bears won the first two games this year at Berkeley, Calif., 15-0 and 11-9, and only needed a tie to capture the series.

California faced the wind in the first half but had an equal share of the play although they were losing 3-0 at half-time. They took a 6-3 lead after 10 minutes of the second half.

Alan Schmeiser, California full-back, suffered a fractured right collarbone five minutes from the end of the game, and was taken to hospital.

All points were scored through penalty kicks.

Billy, Gardner Give Par Trimming

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP).—Stubby Billy Maxwell and slender Gardner Dickinson Jr. slashed eight shots off par Thursday with superb 64s and stepped out to a joint three-stroke lead in the first round of the Miami Beach Open Golf Tournament.

Maxwell's 33-31 and Dickinson's 34-30 matched the record for the Bayshore Club course with its par of 36-36-72 stretched over 6,577 yards. The record was set a year ago in the second round of this tournament by Shelly Mayfield of Westbury, N.Y. Mayfield was far back Thursday with a 70.

Dickinson collected six birdies on the back nine.

Of the four Canadians entered, only two completed the day's round in par or better. Al Balding of Toronto put together scores of 36 and 35 for 71 while Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., had a 72 on rounds of 37 and 35.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., had 38-37-75 and Murray Tucker of Toronto 36-40-76.

Cats Square QHL Series

BY BRITISH UNITED PRESS

The champion Shawinigan Falls Cataracts snapped back to form in the Quebec Hockey League playoffs Thursday night and blanked the Saguenens 4-0 at Chicoutimi.

The victory evened the best-of-seven semifinal series at one game apiece. The Sags pulled an upset in the opening game by defeating the league champions on their own ice.

GALT, Ont. (CP).—Red-haired Margie Crossland of Calgary's Glenoe Skating Club today carried a 25-point lead into the junior ladies' singles finals of the Canadian figure skating championships.

Alaska Pine Reports Record Sales in 1955

NEW YORK (CP)—Rayonier Inc., and subsidiaries, including Alaska Pine and Cellulose Ltd., Vancouver, Thursday reported record net sales in 1955 of $142,520,968. Earnings were equal to $2.87 a common share compared with $2.05 in 1954.

The annual report by Clyde B. Morgan, president, said net sales were 4 per cent higher than the 1954 figure of $86,938,652. Principal reason for the increase was consolidation of $41,764,440 sales of Alaska Pine in which Rayonier acquired an 80 per cent common stock interest late in 1954.

Rayonier's own sales in 1955 reached $100,756,529, or 16 per cent more than 1954, the previous record high.

Morgan reported that in 1955 all of Rayonier's preferred stock was retired and the publicly-held, long-term debt of Alaska was paid off.

Working capital increased $12,436,511 to $82,561,577. G. H. Hilton, president, said an estimated $88,000,000 required to complete approval capital expenditures greatly exceeds cash resources. However, since the expenditures would extend over at least two years, it was expected the additional amount needed would be provided from earnings and depreciation allowances.

A rapidly expanding industrial firm requires as a PERSONNEL MANAGER, one who can eventually assume full responsibilities for establishing and directing all functions common to a purposeful personnel department. The immediate emphasis will be on supervisory (foreman) training and development. Thereafter the position offers a challenge with a good salary and a broad scope for the successful applicant. Your written application, specific as possible re qualifications, experience and particular interests in personnel, will be accepted in strict confidence by John Fleury personally at:

Four Sawmills Amalgamate In Kootenays

New Plant Planned To Utilize Waste

CRANBROOK (CP) — The use of waste products in a new, integrated forest industry in the East Kootenay was forecast here Thursday with announcement of the merger of four sawmill companies.

The new company, Cranbrook Timber Ltd., will be the largest producer of lumber in the B.C. interior.

V. C. Brown of Cranbrook, vice-president, said a pressed board plant costing about $750,000 may be built to utilize sawmill waste.

Forming the new company are Cranbrook Sash and Door Co. Ltd., Cranbrook; its two subsidiaries, Columbia Contracting Co. Ltd., Canal Flats, and George McInnes Ltd., St. Mary's lake, and Cranbrook Sawmills Ltd., Parson, B.C.

Cranbrook Timber will operate three main plants—a planing mill, dry kiln and a re-manufacturing plant at Cranbrook; a planing mill at Canal Flats, and a sawmill planing mill and dry kiln at Parson.

In addition, seven sawmills will supply rough lumber to these plants. About 425 men will be employed. Annual cut will be about 50,000,000 board feet.

President of the new company is J. M. Brown Jr. of Sandpoint, Idaho.

$4.5 MILLION EXPANSION FOR PEMBINA

CALGARY (CP) — Shareholders of Pembina Pipe Line Ltd. have been told their company plans to spend $4,500,000 this year to expand pipeline facilities serving the Pembina oil field in west central Alberta.

The company's first annual report forecast construction of a new pumping unit, the system's fourth, and completion of another 100 miles of gathering pipeline this summer.

Prairies Slash Wheat Plantings

OTTAWA (BUP) — Canadian farmers are going to prune their wheat acreage by 700,000 acres, the bureau of statistics said Thursday in its second special crop report of 1956.

The move will bring the wheat acreage down to its lowest ebb since 1943, and 4,800,000 acres below the 1954 average.

The report said that the planned wheat acreage for the prairies is 23,035,000 acres, compared with 23,812,000 last year. With winter wheat seeded last fall, the plantings will total 20,800,000 acres, 3½ per cent below last year's combined 21,500,000 acres.

Planned summer-fallow planting showed the biggest drop of more than 1,000,000 acres to 22,944,000 acres from last year's 23,960,000, the report said.

B.C. Prospectors Plan Wide Hunt for Copper

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia prospectors are making ready for one of their busiest summers ever. And the big hunt this year will be for copper, not uranium.

The provincial mines department said about 13,000 claims were staked last year. At least a dozen companies encouraged the price of 46 cents a pound—34 cents higher than 10 years ago—have taken options on copper claims, prepared for an intensive prospecting season, started drilling, or opened up new workings.

This south central city, 170 miles northeast of Vancouver, is the centre of the biggest activity at present.

SHOWINGS NOT NEW

Exact figures aren't known, but a mining department official said "an educated guess is that there now are 3,000 copper claims staked around Kamloops. In 1954 the total number of all mining claims made in the province was 5,300.

Copper showings have been known in the Kamloops area for more than 40 years and

EAST GERMANY BUYS FIRST CANADA WHEAT

OTTAWA (CP) — Communist East Germany has agreed to buy several millions of bushels of Canadian wheat for cash federal officials disclosed Thursday.

This is believed to be the first direct wheat sale to the Soviet satellite. The exact amount involved and the grades were not disclosed but the sum involved is believed to be over $3,000,000.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, March 22nd—These are the months... when it is so important to guard your child's regularity with CASTORIA. It's so mild and gentle, because it contains only a mild vegetable laxative... and so never forces or grips. Children like it, because it is so pleasant to the taste. Castoria is clinically approved... created for a child's needs. Do be watchful over your child's health in these after-water months that can be so treacherous! Large bottle 45c. Economy family size 75c. On sale at all drug counters, everywhere!

It's A Good Habit! For better flavor—better nutrition—better food energy—add a pat of BLUE BONNET MARGARINE to all your vegetables! Be generous with it! Let it melt over hot beans—potatoes—beets—broccoli—any vegetable! They're all doubly delicious with Blue Bonnet goodness added to them. Give your family the added benefit of the essential vitamins and minerals that are concentrated in every pound. Add a pat to a baked potato... to a wafer... to hot biscuits. "Everything's better with Blue Bonnet on it!" That's the phrase to remember when you buy margarine. So don't use just any margarine—get your package of Blue Bonnet today!

Brought Home Our Budget!... the cutest, most exquisite little fellow imaginable... a delicate sea-green with pale yellow head and wings—makes me think of sunlight under water. Were so happy with our pet we hardly leave the cage without getting someone for him...

Talk Of Magic Potions! Nothing I've known has ever done as much for my dry skin, as quickly, as the wonder-working Lanolin Plus Liquid! It's a patented, exclusive formula for the concentration of lanolin—in an opaque, golden liquid with a haunting hint of fragrance. I promise you that your skin will feel softer, smoother! Use it as a night cream, as a cleanser, as a make-up base. You'll find LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID is absorbed into your skin quickly—because it contains Nature's own kind of lubricant! A blessing for dry skin—wrinkles and premature crow's-feet. Treat yourself to Lanolin Plus Liquid... for a lovelier you... do!

A Light-hearted Idea... on a very practical subject! You can get the prettiest "dress-up" diaper for your darling FREE!... with every dozen CHIX GAUZE DIAPERS you buy... an adorable fancy diaper sprinkled with a gay pattern of rosebuds (dye-fast and non-allergenic). This offer is for a limited time only, so be sure to get yours soon. CHIX absorb quickly and evenly... they're easy to wash... dry wrinkle-free. Chix are made of special surgical-type gauze, with pinked edges for greater comfort. Economical, too... just one size, designed to fit throughout the entire diaper period!

We Moderns Are So Lucky!... Ever Heard Of A Christmas Egg? Seems a funny thing to talk about around Easter-time, but I'm really serious... it's a Christmas nest-egg! That's what I call my Christmas gift-fund at the BANK OF MONTREAL, into which I deposit a set sum each payday to meet those Yuletide expenses. My advice is to start your Xmas "nest-egg" right now and give yourself a full nine months of saving time. That way, you'll have a tidy balance in your gift fund by December to meet those Christmas-shopping bills. Why not open your gift-fund at the B of M today? Come Christmas it will help you match your mood to the merry sound of jingle bells.

Earn Money... With Your Cheese Recipes. Each week BORDEN'S will pay $10 for the most interesting recipe, or serving idea—for any of their famous cheeses—the King-Size Slices... twice as long so they're twice as useful, and made from the best of cheddars. Then there's Baumert Cream Cheese (Five flavors to choose from!), Chateau or the E-Zee Cheez in the re-usable glass. Send your recipes to me—as many as you like! You have a good chance to earn a $10 bill given each week—for homey, family ideas—or smart hostess tricks in serving these delectable cheeses! THIS WEEK, $10 goes to Mrs. Ralph Kearney, North Carson Street, Etobicoke, Ont. ... for an idea I tested last night, with great success! It's an idea for glamorizing your hamburger, with Borden's King-Size Slices. Mrs. Kearney writes: "Make your favorite hamburger patties and grill them 3 ins. from the heat. After the first turnings, top each one with a Borden's King-Size Cheese Slice. We like to add a touch of prepared mustard, and finish broiling." Good, Mrs. Kearney! Now who's got some other ideas for these superb Borden's cheeses? Send them to me—as many, and as often as you like! We'll publish the $10 recipe, each week. Confidentially Yours, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Then ask Andy... Andy who is a 10-year-old boy, will answer questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions are selected to receive as prizes for the main question, either a 10-volume set of 'The Children's Year Book' or a 10-volume set of 'The American People's Encyclopedia'. Prizes for the secondary question will be an 'American People's Encyclopedia Year Book' or a year's subscription to 'Treasure Trails' plus 'Andy's Everyday Encyclopedia'.

Andy sends a complete, 16-volume set of 'The Children's Year Book' to Andalee Rosier, aged eight, of Hollywood, Calif., for her question:

How Do They Make Caves?
Cave exploring is exciting, by solid walls it stays put. If you feel breathless wonder as you stand in a vast cathedral cavern. You laugh with the bubbling underground waterfall. You love the mystery of the winding tunnels. You are amazed at the hanging stalactites, the spiky stalagmites. There is sweet music when you tap the columns that grow from floor to ceiling when the spikes and stony icicles meet.

There are scares too. Suddenly there is a whir of wings. A dark form swoops down, dips over your shoulder and disappears into an eerie niche. Of course it was only a bat and these underground caves are his rightful home, so that scare does not last.

Soon you begin to wonder who made these caves, these endless tunnels. Maybe they were dug out by the cave-men of long ago. Our cave-men ancestors could cope with wild animals and a bitter climate but they could not have built these magnificent caves. Sometimes, though, they used them as homes.

The caves were built by Mother Nature's running waters. You might suppose that towering torrents were needed for the job. Sometimes a water fall or strong river did lend a hand. But most of the work was done by little raindrops. Naturally it takes billions of raindrops and thousands of rainy seasons to hollow out a big cavern. But that is how the job is done.

Water falls until it hits a floor. If it is also trapped there

3. Andy sends a year's subscription to 'Treasure Trails' to John Stowe, age 11, of Milwaukee, Wis., for his question:
WHAT IS PARCHMENT?
Originally, parchment was a special kind of leather from Asia Minor. Later, almost any animal hide was used to make parchment. When properly treated, these durable hides last for hundreds of years. Stretched and dried, the insides of these skins make fine surfaces for writing. Before papermaking became common all important documents were written on parchment.
Nowadays we have a special paper called parchment. It is dipped in sulphuric acid to give it that genuine, old-time parchment finish and is made from pulverized rags and wood. This fine paper is also called vellum.
We also use the word parchment to mean any important document. Even though all modern documents are written

Fox Reopens With Sprightly 'Seven Brides'

Because he has been able to obtain a better film rental deal and superior pictures, Bert Nixon, owner of the Fox Theatre on Quadra, near Hillside, said today he will reopen his theatre tonight at 6.30.

The Fox closed down approximately one month ago.

Instead of its former policy of offering films six nights a week, Mr. Nixon said the Fox would open from Wednesdays through Saturdays. When he was able to procure outstanding foreign-language films in the fields of ballet, opera and drama he would play these on Mondays and Tuesdays. The new policy is also a single bill one, where one picture will be shown along with shorts and cartoons.

Tonight and Saturday the Fox will show last year's Academy Award nominee, the sprightly musical, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers."

7 Queen's Scouts To Receive Awards

DUNCAN — Seven Duncan scouts will receive Queen's Scout badges at a ceremony at the city hall here on Sunday at 3 p.m.

Colonel M. E. Dopping-Henstall, honorary district commissioner, will present the badges to Allan Hudson, First Quamichan Troop; Michael Hansen, Michael Jagers, David Goodacre and Raymond Cleugh, First Duncan Troop; Richard Marshall and Fred Nicolson, Second Duncan Troop.

In April these scouts will attend a provincial investiture ceremony at Government House, Victoria, when they will receive the Queen's Scout certificates from Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

France's Darling 'La Josephine' Ends Career for Life of Mother

PARIS (UP) — Josephine Baker, the controversial American Negro singer who helped bring the jazz age to Paris, ends her long career today.

She said with the end of today's performance at Paris' Olympia music hall the lights around her name would blink out and she would devote her life to her seven adopted children.

"La Josephine" as she was called by three generations of admiring Frenchmen first won fame when she pranced across the stage of the Folies Bergere wearing a garland of bananas and singing "J'ai Deux Amours."

At the height of her fame she was a French national institution along with the late Mistinguett and Maurice Chevalier. To France she was a bright symbol of the jazz era. She was known to many American visitors to France, but her popularity in the United States declined in recent years because of a series of anti-American statements attributed to her, based on the racial discrimination she said she found in her native country.

Her seven adopted children represent the white, the yellow and the black races. She said she intended to raise them together as an example of racial tolerance for her contemporaries.

Credit Union Declares 4% Dividend

LANGFORD—Dividend of 4 per cent for 1955 was declared by the Langwood Credit Union at its annual meeting here Wednesday. The figure was an increase of 1 per cent over the 1954 dividend. Assets were reported as $12,700, and loans to members for business and personal reasons in 1955 were over $25,000.

Membership has been growing steadily and now stands at 90. Officers for the current year, re-elected by acclamation, are: President, E. Jeffery; vice-president, H. F. Hoag; treasurer, R. H. Sanders; secretary, M. Leggett.

Scout group committee here will hold a card party in the Canadian Legion Hall, March 31, at 8 p.m. Whist will be played and there will be a door prize. Lady members of the committee will be in charge of arrangements.

President William McDowell has announced that work on the Scout Hall will resume Saturday. Volunteers to assist with the work are needed, and persons willing to help are asked to be at the hall after 8 a.m. and to bring tools if possible.

Kerry Argue Elected

Chemainus Hospital Shows $4,012 Loss

Deficit Blamed on Small Patient Load In 1954 and 40-Hour Week to Workers

CHEMAINUS—Chemainus General Hospital showed an operating loss of $4,012 for the year ending last Dec. 31, administrator G. C. Saunders told the annual meeting.

Mr. Saunders gave $105,077 as the total operating revenue. Cost of operating the hospital in 1955 was $110,539. Of this amount, $67,539 went for salaries and wages. Operating revenue was made up chiefly of earnings from patients and amounting to $99,072.

The operating deficit was directly traceable to the small patient load of 1954, resulting in a reduced budget for last year and particularly to the hospital having granted a 40-hour week last May, board chairman William Wyllie said in his annual report.

Granting of the 40-hour week constituted a salary increase, Mr. Wyllie said.

CAN ONLY HOPE

"Under the no-salary-increase order issued by the minister of health later that month, the BCHHS is unable to accept the increased cost. We can only hope for better things this year," he said.

Four members of the board of directors were re-elected for two-year terms: Wm. Wyllie, A. D. Aiken, Dr. R. N. Dick and George Beaubier. M. G. English of Crofton was elected for one year to fill a board vacancy.

Kinsmen will devote their time and energies this summer to carrying out improvements to their park and playground, opened to the public last summer.

First phase of the project will see four new tables constructed at the beach playground for the convenience of picnickers. Additional landscaping will be done to the park as soon as weather permits. New playground equipment will be sought and a committee was named to bring in a recommendation on the type of new facilities needed.

ALERT BAY SCHOOL VOTE GETS GO-AHEAD

Provincial cabinet Friday approved a plan of the Alert Bay school board to hold a plebiscite on a $150,000 school construction program.

GRAPHITE SOURCE

Austria rivals Ceylon among the world's largest sources of high-grade graphite.

Mr. Wilfert, president of Nanaimo Liberal Association, said the customs dock likely will be designed to provide accommodation for ships belonging to the Pacific Biological Station at Departure Bay, as well as to serve as a landing place for small vessels reporting to customs.

A conference of Kiwanians from Vancouver Island and Washington clubs will be held here May 5 and 6.

Nominations will be called for the post of lieutenant-governor, now held by George Addison of Nanaimo.

More than 100 members will attend from 10 clubs, including those of Victoria, Oak Bay, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Courtenay and western Washington.

Dear Ed:

Say I was sorry to hear you need pix I'd be glad to help but we're down to our last shovel and have no pix at all it was a hard winter you know. By the way, now I am writing you anyway, please send me another supply of those nice black pencils. My little girls age 8, 7, 6, 5, 4 and 3 are doing a mural on the wall of Bossie's stall. Regards, your very own Cutting Corners correspondent.

My Very Own Island Editor,

Dear You:

It was so nice of you to send that telegram. It was the first telegram we've had here at Wobble Hill since 1918 when the Vancouver police wired us to please come and get Lem he was breaking up their nice jail poor Lem he is so exuberant.

But I am afraid I can't be of much help Caddy still being unseen here perhaps because the only water nearby is in the horse trough and the first rose is still unblooming perhaps because we go in more for growing aspidistras of course they are unblooming too but that is another story.

Your mention of accidents fires and church socials reminds me of an amusing incident last Friday, or was it Thursday, no Thursday we had a Scrabble tournament. It must have been Friday or perhaps Wednesday, well, anyway a can of gasoline got accidentally spilled on the air-tight heater at the town hall and a fire resulted the reason I am reminded is, a Church Social was going on at the time—but very few people were burned, not too seriously that is, it was very amusing but hardly worth writing about do you think?

Dear Sir:

I regret to report there is a dearth of news here because the mayor of Goon Centre, Mr. Abner Goon, refuses to let the Press interview him.

He barricaded himself behind locked doors after losing his week's spending money at dominoes.

However, I have arranged for a battering ram, and hope soon to have a first person interview from Mr. Goon's hospital room, which has been reserved for him. Regards,

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, former Canadian Ambassador to Japan, today purchased 100 shares in the tallest totipole project, on behalf of the children at the B.C. Protestant Orphanage.

Mr. Mayhew's purchase brings the total share subscriptions to $4,707.50. The subscription list will be kept open until the end of April.

William Wood Cook, 3316 Quadra, was fined $25 or five days in jail when convicted in Saanich police court Thursday on a charge of failing to have 1956 licence plates displayed on his car on March 1.

Gerald Martin of Halifax, N.S., president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, will address a meeting of Victoria members of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. in the Monterey Restaurant Monday at 6 p.m.

Mr. Martin arrives in Victoria Friday accompanied by Michael Howarth, executive secretary of the Canadian Institute.

Former world health organization director Dr. Brock Chisholm will address the United Nations Association here April 19, place and time to be announced later.

New president of Victoria Rotary Club is E. Verne Davidson, elected Thursday at the club's luncheon. Directors named to two-year terms were E. R. Brand, F. H. A. Norton Jr., Jack Conolly and D. E. Johnson. Secretary, treasurer and vice-president will be named later by the board of directors.

New chief training officer of 4 Light Anti-Aircraft Battery Army Cadet Corps is Lieut. Fred Fotheringham, appointed following resignation of Lieut. Cy Burley.

Active with militia, regular army and Canadian Cadet Services for 30 years, Lieut. Burley found pressure of business too great to retain his position of command. Lieut. Fotheringham was second-in-command before his appointment.

Saanich Man Fined $75 for Assault

In city police court today Edward Robertson, 23, 3401 Bethune, was fined $75 or 15 days in jail on a charge of assaulting Ferdinand Vocat, 1020 Pendergast.

Robertson previously pleaded guilty to the charge which arose from an early-morning incident last Saturday outside a city television store.

Mr. Vocat suffered a cut above his eye when struck by Robertson, he testified.

Robertson was given to Thursday to pay the fine.

A VICTORIA OFFICER with 24 years army service, Capt. John H. Kelly, 42 CD, has been appointed deputy assistant provost marshal of 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade and officer commanding the brigade provost detachment in Germany. The appointment includes promotion to the rank of major, effective immediately. Major Kelly is the son of Hugh Kelly, 412 Denman. He began service with the Canadian Scottish Regiment in 1932.

Jail Terms Imposed On City Trio

Burglary Tools Bring Conviction

Sentences of two years and six months in the penitentiary were imposed by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson today upon three men who were convicted by an Assize Court jury last week of being in possession of housebreaking tools.

Sentenced were Nelson Hutchinson, 29, Fred Schultz, 25, and Bhaga Singh, 28, all of Victoria.

The justice refused a plea for leniency from defence lawyers after it was disclosed by Crown counsel Lloyd McKenzie that all three had served penitentiary terms.

HAD CHANCES

"They all have had the time and chances to redeem themselves," said Mr. Justice Wilson.

It was disclosed for the first time that Schultz was previously convicted in Vancouver on Nov. 25, 1952, of having unlawfully in his possession a revolver and being in the possession of housebreaking tools.

Bhaga Singh was convicted of rape in 1952 and sentenced to two years and six months for the offence.

ARMED ROBBERY

Hutchinson's criminal record included a conviction of armed robbery at the Goldstream Hotel in 1950. He was sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

In the present case, the three men were arrested by Saanich police on Nov. 27 on Albina Street, in a car parked near a Gorge Road chain grocery store. Detonators with wires attached, and battery were found on Schultz.

The Crown contended that the trio intended to crack open the safe in the grocery store.

Sailor Gets Manslaughter Borstal Term

Peter Henry Bell, HMCS Naden, convicted of motor manslaughter, was sentenced by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court today to three months and six months indeterminate detention in Borstal Institution.

The justice said he was being lenient with the sailor because he did not "belong to a criminal class."

"But I can't forget that Bell took the life of an honest and decent citizen," said the judge.

Mr. Justice Wilson also issued an order prohibiting Bell from driving on Canadian highways for seven years.

Bell was convicted of motor manslaughter of Chief Jasper Charles, who died of injuries sustained in an accident at the intersection of Johnson and Catherine, Dec. 27, 1955.

Condition of four-year-old Doreen Sanders, 236 Cadillac, remained unchanged at the Royal Jubilee hospital today.

She has been unconscious and critical since suffering serious head injuries when she collided with a car Sunday outside Centennial United church.

Two persons were treated at hospital for minor injuries following a two-car accident early this morning at Richmond and Oak Bay avenue.

Police said Arthur Meija, 50, 1613 Earle, suffered shock, and that Alvina Meija received bruises to her right arm.

The accident occurred when a car driven east on Oak Bay avenue by John Ciceri, 1172 Burdett, collided with a car driven south on Richmond by Mr. Meija at about 12:25 a.m.

Victoria branch Canadian Red Cross passed the 50 per cent mark today in the drive for $80,000 by the end of March. The total at noon was $40,169.

Mrs. J. Andrews of Besant Lodge, will address a public meeting sponsored by the Theosophical Society at 904 Government, Sunday, at 8 p.m. Her topic will be "The Reality of Inner Experience."

Final film showing for children in Provincial Museum's current series will be Saturday at 9:30 a.m. for the first run, and 11 a.m. for the second.

Title of the Walt Disney production is "Seal Island."

Sport Fishing Limits Reduced

Dismayed Anglers Seek Meeting to Air Problems

By BILL RAYNER, Times Sports Reporter

New sport fishing catch limits in tidal waters around Vancouver Island, announced in Vancouver today by A. J. Whitmore, Supervisor of Fisheries, have struck a general note of dismay in local and Island angling circles.

The new limit is now a daily catch per person of four salmon less than three pounds in weight or eight grise, or not more than eight salmon or grise in the aggregate.

Old limit was five salmon, ten grise, or ten salmon or grise in the aggregate.

But the cut was not as bad as it could have been, according to Andy Anderson, president of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

"We can still fish, anyway," he told the Times today. "They could have cut us down more, and there is nothing we can do about it. It's still a good limit to make."

"But if they are going to cut us down, sport fishing is insignificant compared to commercial fishing and the commercial limit should be the one reduced."

Mr. Anderson's comments were shared by more vehement fishermen contacted by the Times.

"It doesn't add up," said one spokesman. "You can get a commercial licence and fill your boat for one dollar. It's not fair to sport fishing."

Mr. Anderson is attempting to arrange a meeting in Victoria next month between local sports fishermen and United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union to discuss the sports vs. commercial fishing question.

Commercial representatives are reported to be willing to talk things over with the anglers.

Other specific cuts in salmon limits were made in famed Rivers Inlet and Philips Arm, popular with Victoria fishermen.

Sport fishing in Rivers Inlet will be limited to a daily catch of two salmon and a seasonal catch of six between July 20 and Sept. 15, while in Philips Arm a straight daily catch limit of three salmon has been set for the whole season.

Another amendment announced by the supervisor dispenses with the closed season on Campbell River and its tributaries.

Morris Greene Re-Elected Mayor of City's Store St.

Morris L. Greene was re-elected "Mayor of Store Street" at Victoria Rotary Club Thursday, after he had passed out cigars to his constituents and urged Premier Bennett to spend the entire $10 million beautification money on his celebrated waterfront address.

To the accompaniment of a brass band, "Mayor" Greene reminded Rotarians that his street boasted "the only completely dieselized railway in Canada"; that it was a great supplier of raw materials, which went out to Victoria as finished products and returned to Store Street eventually on the garbage scow.

Greene conceded that he was manager, publicity officer, finance minister and nominating chairman of his own campaign.

"If the voters have lead in their pants, I can always convert it into scrap," said Greene, who operates Capital Iron and Metals Ltd. He was elected by acclamation, there being no other candidates.

Final Festival Show Tonight at 1st United

BY AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

With a grand final concert tonight at First United Church, the Greater Victoria Music Festival concludes for another year.

It will be a concert in which special performances by outstanding competitors in the festival will be featured. For example, the festival committee, at the request of adjudicator Theodore Normann, is bringing back from Vancouver, two young girl pianists who amazed everyone with their performance in the open concerto class, Wednesday.

Janet Thom and Catherine Arakawa, who were awarded the highest piano mark in the festival, 91 and 90 respectively, both will appear on the program.

Then there will be the delightful singing of the Canadian Services College cadet choir from Royal Roads. And on the competitive side, the Victoria City Medallion class for senior piano winners and the Rose Bowl contest for vocal championship will be heard.

The popular Meistersingers and Arion Club Male Choir will vie with each other as a program opener.

At Thursday night's concert, the following awards were made: Victoria North Kiwanis Club bursaries; for highest mark in all junior vocal classes, Jean Barlow; for highest mark in senior brass or woodwind, Pauline Beattie; highest mark in Junior brass and woodwind, Lois Lawrence; senior sight reading and quick study, Shirley Russell; junior sight reading and quick study, Julian Greenwood.

University Women's Club music study group award for performance of Bach, went to Joanne Dawson.

In awarding the highest choral marking he has given, George Lambert said of First United Church Ladies' Choir, "I would like to give them the freedom of the city." He gave them a double 90 marking for their two test pieces.

City Man Chooses Trial by Jury On Cheque Charge

Total bail of $1,500 was set in city police court today for Telford Charles Nault, Victoria, on two false pretences charges.

Nault elected trial by judge and jury on a charge involving a $60 cheque.

He was remanded to April 3 for preliminary hearing. Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said he would also be prepared to proceed at that time with the second charge, that of obtaining a 1950 model car by false pretences.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall set bail at $1,000 on the charge involving the $60 cheque, and at $500 on the other charge.

Defence counsel is Gerald Lauder.

Cadet Tells Of Cruise To Japan

A first-hand report of the training cruise to Japan of HMCS Ontario for HMCS Venture cadets, which ended at Esquimalt Harbor Thursday afternoon.

BY CADET G. A. CYBANSKI (As told to Monte Roberts)

Our training cruise in HMCS Ontario was a very good cruise and I am sorry it is over. But there was a great deal of work attached to it, as we kept up our regular classroom studies as well as learning how to live afloat.

It was my first time in a cruiser. I had traveled a little in merchant ships, as a passenger, but this was completely different.

One of our first jobs was to learn our way around the ship, and some of us didn't find this very easy. I admit I got lost, more than once, going from one job to another.

The cadets aboard were divided into three messes, and I drew the forecabin mess. Most of my memories of the voyage are tied up with the mess. We ate, slept, dressed, studied—well, we simply lived in this one small area.

All the things we learned during the day, we reviewed in the mess, and we hoped they would stick in our heads.

"MICK" TROUBLES

The cadets slept in hammocks—we soon learned to call them "micks"—but it took us longer to learn how to sling them and stow them. After the first night, it took me half an hour to stow my mick.

I'd never slept in one aboard ship, and I was sure I was going to roll out. But after the first two nights, I found it as comfortable a bed as I'd ever been in.

As a first year cadet at Venture, the shore training establishment, I was taught to do everything on the double, and the same was expected of us on the ship. We hadn't been long out of port when emergency stations were piped, and we had to get there in a hurry. My station was at float 19—a carley float—and the emergency seemed so real, I fell over myself getting there.

LIKED GUNNERY

One of the things I liked best was the gunnery training. I was layer on both a Bofors and a four-inch, and we had live target shooting practice.

For awhile I was Electrical Commander doggle—that is, learning about the electrical system of the ship. Damage control headquarters is the most interesting for electrical equipment.

We had good shore leaves in San Francisco, Pearl Harbor and Japan, but when we returned to the ship, we had to write up our experiences and impressions in our junior officer journals.

My instructor said my journal was "good," but I have to watch my spelling and learn to use the proper naval terms. I have a long way to go yet.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Destroyer-escort Crescent, destroyer Cayuga, frigates Jonquiere, New Glasgow, Ste. Therese en route St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, returning Esquimalt May 10.

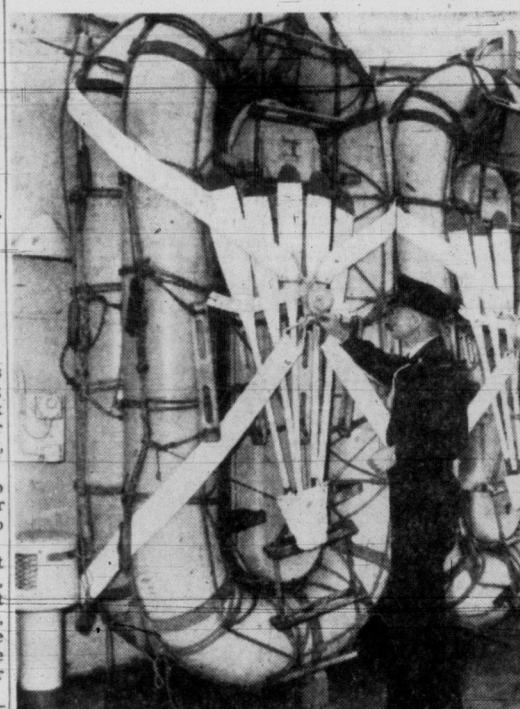

Minisweepers Comox, James Bay, Fortune, on exercises, returning April 6.

Coastal escort Cordova to Vancouver, Powell River, returning Monday.

U.S. destroyer Charles E. Brannon arrives Esquimalt Saturday, leaves Sunday.

A HAMMOCK TAKES a little getting used to, but after the first two nights, it was fine.

MY EMERGENCY STATION was at Float 19. I could imagine myself hanging on to it in the water.

INCOME TAX TIPS—EXPENSES DEDUCTIBLE

Income From Rentals Is Taxable

By GORDON HOLMS
Member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants

If you rent as much as a single room in your house the income from this source must be considered in preparing your 1955 income tax return.

And you must use the T-1 general form, not the T-1 short form.

Only in cases where gross expenses in renting a room exceed the total income can you ignore this source of income.

Those who are making a living or a good portion of it from rentals will readily understand that this income is taxable.

But even if you only augment your income by renting part of a dwelling you are equally liable to taxation on this score.

In Greater Victoria there are thousands of individual room rentals, housekeeping rooms, single suites and separate apartments.

There are allowable expenses which can be deducted from this income. But it must be remembered that the expenses are apportioned when only one or two rooms are let.

For example, if all the space in a building is let the total expenses can be claimed. If only one room in a five-room house is let, then one-fifth of the total expenses of the dwelling can be charged.

If a taxpayer owns an apartment house and lets one of the suites, he should figure it this way: If the apartment block has 10 suites, eliminate one-tenth of the allowable expenses on the entire building.

The allowable expenses include property insurance, fire protection rates, taxes, insurance other than life insurance, cost of light, heat and water that is supplied, ordinary repairs, mortgage interest (but not payments on principal) and capital cost allowance (depreciation).

(Tomorrow: Don't Wait Till April 30.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

It's Time To Be Planning Foods for Easter Dinner

By PENNY SAVER

A week from today, there'll be many a shopping list being made up or checked for Easter Sunday dinner items. Let's be a step ahead, and stock up on the traditional trimmings so that the weekend will be as little hectic as possible.

If you're planning to have a ham, boiled, baked and garnished to perfection, you must first have the glaze fruits and spices all ready. Pineapple slices, in a 20-ounce tin, cost 34 cents. Spread across the top of the ham, and centred with green or red cherries, and then covered with your favorite mustard and brown sugar mixture, they'll take on a wonderfully spicy new taste.

If you prefer chunks of pineapple, they're also 34 cents, and long pineapple spears are the same price. The crushed fruit is 31 cents. Brown sugar, so necessary for this dish, costs 21 cents a box.

Glaze pineapple rings in green, red or yellow, are a delicious touch to top the ham or decorate the serving dish, and are two for 17 cents.

A box of red or green glaze whole cherries costs 29 cents. Even after Easter you'll find dozens of uses for these sweet gems.

Yams, that seem to show up whenever we have a ham in our house, are 20 cents a pound.

Assist New Canadians, WMS Urged

Mrs. W. H. Muncy, guest speaker at meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of First United Church, afternoon auxiliary, presented a story of new Canadians.

"They throw out a challenge to WMS members," Mrs. Muncy said, "to take them as fellow citizens and to consider their individual worth."

"They bring much character and many skilled workmen. We must co-operate with kindness and tolerance; make known to them that we are interested and help them to learn our language."

The United Church of Canada has workers at ports of entry, Halifax, Montreal and Vancouver, who give much aid to these newcomers, Mrs. Muncy said.

Mrs. E. J. Capling presided; Mrs. J. G. Crulickshank took the devotional and Mrs. H. H. Youson was soloist. Reports showed that 63 home and eight hospital calls had been made in the month.

Eagles Auxiliary Elects Officers

A new slate of officers was elected by acclamation at a recent meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Fraternal Order of Eagles. Mrs. M. Carver is president and other officers were taken by Mrs. E. Chalk, vice-president; Mrs. K. Kenyon, chaplain; Mrs. E. Lacey, conductor; Mrs. L. Hobday, secretary; Mrs. P. Jeeves, treasurer; Mrs. J. Champion, inside guard; Mrs. A. Biles, outside guard; Mrs. D. Kissing, trustee, three-year term; Mrs. G. Holland, auxiliary mother.

Delegates to the provincial convention in June are Mrs. M. Hallam, Mrs. L. Wright, Mrs. E. Chalk, Mrs. L. Hobday, Mrs. E. Carver and Mrs. A. Smith.

Two new members, Mrs. R. Noble and Mrs. C. Harvey, were initiated. Mrs. L. Holman gave the sick report. Plans were discussed for a mother's day tea in May.

Mrs. A. Smith presided at the meeting, which was followed by tea, served under convener'ship of Mrs. M. Hallam.

Square Meal Diet No. 5 Shows Irregular Meals Bane to Figure

Here's the fifth of a seven-day series on keeping your weight in check with a "Square Meal Diet," prepared by a consumer specialist. Today a TV star tops off the menu with her own experiences in keeping trim on three square meals a day.

By NANETTE FABRAY
Of TV's "Caesar's Hour"

Irregular meals are the bane of my existence. And if I'm not careful they send the indicator on my bathroom scale up.

So it's easy to fall into the bad habit of sketchy meals and refrigerator raids. A peanut butter sandwich here, a handful of potato chips there, a couple of cookies, or a leftover piece of cake. It all seems like nothing at the time. But how the calories mount.

What brought me up short was a friend (also in show business) who dropped in one afternoon and caught me eating my favorite peanut butter sandwich along with a wedge of chocolate cake and a handful of salted peanuts.

"Is that your idea of a balanced lunch?" she asked. "It seems a little heavy on the peanut side."

I looked nervously at the remnants of half my sandwich still held limply in my right hand.

"You can throw your calorie intake way out of balance by eating that way," my friend added. "Then the pounds creep up. No snacks for me, kiddo. Let's talk about something else."

But we didn't. We kept on talking about between-meal snacks. Or snacks supposed to substitute for a meal. And I ended up by learning that three light, well-balanced meals a day plus raw carrots or celery or a cup of bouillon between meals are the best possible aids to good health and a trim figure.

BY MRS. DOLORES ELLIOTT
Here's the fifth day menu in your 1,400-calories-a-day "Square Meal Diet":

Breakfast
1/2 medium cantaloupe
1 soft-cooked egg
1 thin slice toast
1 medium pat butter
1/2 cup whole milk

Lunch
Salmon-celery salad
1/2 cup salmon
1 tsp. mayonnaise
1/2 cup green beans
1 double cracker
No butter
1/2 cup whole milk

Dinner
Large serving baked halibut
1/2 cup harvard beets
1/2 medium pat butter
Salad
1/2 cup pineapple-cabbage
No butter
1/2 cup whole milk
1/2 pint ice cream

Moose Jaw Night Enjoyed By 200 at Crystal Garden

A gathering of more than 200 former Moose Jaw residents met in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden for the second annual Moose Jaw night.

Good fellowship and happy reunion prevailed throughout the evening and after greetings were exchanged a short program was enjoyed.

Community singing was led by Alan Thackray; pipes and dancing by Gordon and Jamie Troy; soprano solos were given by Mrs. Mildred Crawford; violin solos, D. H. McDougall; humorous address, "Ireland and the Irish," by Rev. E. P. Church; cantata solos by Mrs. Kay Hilton, and duets by Mrs. Mildred Crawford and Mrs. K. Hilton.

$56 Realized At Church Tea

A sum of $56 was realized at the tea held recently in Garden City United Church by members of the Women's Association.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. W. R. Curry and Mrs. E. J. Staley, and the affair was opened by Mrs. A. J. Rainer. Mrs. M. Newton and Mrs. A. Trulove were in charge of tea tickets, and Mrs. W. Pym and Mrs. M. Alexander, the home-baking stall.

A lace cloth covered the head table, which was centred by a low silver bowl of spring flowers. Presiding at the table were Mrs. T. Goodwin, Mrs. M. Warriner, Mrs. J. C. Tebb, Mrs. R. W. Stewart, Mrs. A. P. Fryatt, Mrs. G. Wilhamson, W. Pym and T. Crosland. Servers were Mrs. J. A. McCulloch, Mrs. E. Ricalton, Mrs. E. Drayson, Mrs. W. B. Peach and Mrs. E. Rushton.

Mrs. P. Woodward was in charge of tea supplies. She was assisted by Mrs. E. Kelner, Mrs. H. Webster and Mrs. T. Crosland. Soloist was W. Pym.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Shower for Miss Morris

Miss Doris Morris, whose marriage to Mr. Frederick Zeer, will take place March 29, was honored at a miscellaneous shower when hostesses were Mrs. W. T. Brown and Mrs. W. R. Crothers. The guest of honor was presented with a corsage of pink roses and sat in a streamer festooned chair to open her gifts, which were brought into the room in a gaily-decorated wagon. Guests included Mrs. T. Shields, Mrs. C. W. Cadwallader, Mrs. V. Little, Mrs. F. Lucky, Mrs. D. Lalande, Mrs. M. Graham and Misses Myrna Collison, Diane Rushton and Ina Ranson.

Parties for Jackie Day

Mrs. J. D. Norrie entertained at her home on Cavendish Avenue recently for Miss Jackie Day, whose marriage to Mr. Bud Hitchcox takes place April 7. Upon her arrival, Miss Day received a corsage of pink roses and, while her mother, Mrs. A. G. Day, and her grandmother, Mrs. E. Cole, received pink carnations. The groom-elect's mother, Mrs. W. C. Hitchcox, received red carnations. Little Lesley Bruce presented the many miscellaneous gifts to Miss Day. They were concealed under a pink and white decorated umbrella. During the evening, Mrs. J. D. Norrie proposed a toast to the bride's happiness. Guests present were Mrs. G. Cole, Mrs. E. McIndoe, Mrs. C. Jones, Mrs. F. Hitchcox, Mrs. G. Bruce, Mrs. J. Blake, Mrs. I. Kirby, Mrs. A. Reid, Mrs. E. Hunt, Mrs. W. Poole, Mrs. G. Danby, Mrs. F. Richardson, Mrs. R. Speck, Mrs. H. Bamford, Mrs. F. Edwards, Mrs. R. Travis, Mrs. J. Davidson, Mrs. W. Dreaper, Mrs. V. Baines, Mrs. F. Homan, Misses B. Speck, Deirdre Hitchcox and Pat Cole.

Mrs. Brian Lawless and Delors Falls were co-hostesses at the Bond Street home of the latter, when assembled guests presented Miss Day with the beginning of a dinner set. A corsage of fuchsia-colored flowers was presented to the guest of honor, while her mother, Mrs. Day, and Mrs. Hitchcox received daffodils, and her grandmother, Mrs. Cole, received iris. Guests invited were Mrs. F. Falls, Mrs. B. Early, Mrs. H. Cote, Misses Jean Provan, Terry Roberts, Maura Hanley, Betty Heinesen, Mary O'Sullivan, Marilyn Westendale, Shelagh Fagan, Ella Bruch, Maureen Pedneault, Marie Rieder and Pat Cole.

For Margaret Spence

A miscellaneous shower in compliment to Miss Margaret Spence was given by Mrs. J. D. Fair, who will be matron of honor. The party was held at 579 Michigan Street. Pink roses and white hyacinth were in Miss Spence's corsage, while narcissi and pink carnations were presented to her mother, Mrs. F. Spence, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. F. Prior. Gifts were concealed in a decorated wedding dress of a bride doll. Guests were Mrs. K. Stofor, Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. S. Jackson, Mrs. E. Curtis, Mrs. T. Saunders, Mrs. B. Palmer, Mrs. K. Cleasley, Mrs. D. Fair, and Misses Mary Wilkinson, Lil Curtis, Jean Hall, Margaret Matthews, Marion Dey and Mary Bochko.

Colwood Lady Golfers Start New Season

Despite dark clouds and heavy showers, lady members of the Royal Colwood Golf Club participated in an opening day two-ball foursome on Thursday morning, followed by luncheon in the attractive clubhouse.

Captain of the ladies' division, Miss Margaret Mahoney, was in charge of arrangements and presided at the luncheon table. Seated with her were Miss Ruth Jones, president of the Vancouver Island Branch of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union; Alex Hendry, president of the Colwood Club's board of directors; Mrs. H. G. Mearns, secretary-treasurer of the VI branch of the CLGU; Miss Kathleen Agnew and Mrs. R. L. Pocock, honorary members of the club; Mrs. H. G. McKenzie, vice-captain; Mrs. William Heath, former national secretary of the CLGU; Mrs. William Erickson and Mrs. W. Yardley, chairman of team fund and ladies' committee respectively.

Purple crocus flowers and mauve and purple primroses, arranged with tiny ferns in low pottery bowls, decorated the tables.

Prizes were presented by Miss Agnew as follows: Low gross, Miss Ruth Jones and Mrs. Helen Erickson; low net, Mrs. H. G. Mearns and Mrs. N. E. Gerrard; beginners (drawn by Miss Agnew), Mrs. M. Russell and Mrs. P. S. Taylor.

Miss Mahoney welcomed 12 new members at the luncheon and introduced to them the committee chairman, Mrs. Yardley, and her assistants, Mrs. R. V. Ditchburn, Mrs. W. McColl, Mrs. T. D. Chessman and Mrs. G. I. Warren.

In charge of the day's arrangements were Mrs. D. W. Spence and Mrs. S. G. Evans. Floral decorations were the work of Mrs. H. E. Vaio.

University Women's Loan Fund Assists 24 Students in 25 Years

In the 25 years of its existence, 24 students have been assisted by the club's student loan fund. Mrs. R. S. Twining told members of the University Women's Club of Victoria in meeting Wednesday evening. Every loan has been repaid, she said. At present four loans are out totalling in value $395.

Mrs. M. F. Smith presided and Mrs. Dexter Stockhill introduced Mrs. B. A. Dakin and Mrs. H. S. Kent as new members and Miss Isabel Branden as a transfer from the Brandon club.

Mrs. W. G. Dempsey reported on final plans for the scholarship tea to be held in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Saturday afternoon. Announcement was made by Mrs. Smith that the Victoria Club will present a panel, "Are Women Pulling Their Weight in Public Life?" at the regional conference in Nanaimo on April 14. Sneakers will be Mrs. A. J. Butterfield, moderator, and Mrs. E. A. Ben-ton, Mrs. D. K. MacDonald, Mrs. Olga Bowes and Miss Anne Gorham.

"Psychosomatic Medicine," the title of an address given by guest speaker, Dr. T. F. Rose, proved an enlightening and frequently amusing topic.

"Psychosomatic" means, not as the Greek origin of the term would apply, the relation of the soul and body, but rather the influence of the mind and emotions upon the body," said Dr. Rose. "So important a factor are the emotions that any medicine which is not psychosomatic is bad medicine."

He was introduced by Dr. Anna Steel and thanked by Mrs. P. R. A. Coombs.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Dempsey with Mrs. T. B. Williams and Dr. Margaret Newton presiding at the coffee table. Servers were Mrs. G. A. Wood, Mrs. T. B. K. Stapleton, Miss Ellen Brown and Miss Joan Moore.

Every loan has been repaid, she said. At present four loans are out totalling in value $395.

TIGER JONES FIGHTS FRANCE'S CHARLIE HUMEZ ON C-4 AT 7

THE CBC AND GOOD FRIDAY—On the Trans-Canada radio network from Monday to Friday at 5.30 p.m., listeners will hear a series of Easter broadcasts under the title of Servant of the Lord. In these programs Doctor Charles Feilding interprets the Passion of Christ with words and sacred music. On the Dominion network there will be a production of the medieval English morality play, Everyman.

No commercial announcements will be heard on the CBC on Good Friday, though some Friday programs which are normally sponsored will be seen and heard at their usual times under CBC auspices.

CRUT's Good Friday television fare will be highlighted by "The Hill," a special Easter play written for television by Paul Almond. It will be carried over Channel 2, commencing at 10.30 p.m.

The choice of "The Hill," and other Holy Week plays, says the CBC, was governed by "our desire to help make the events of the Passion of Jesus Christ more real in the everyday lives of ordinary Christians. For them, the Crucifixion is not simply past history. In the events of Holy Week and Easter they see the revelation of God's eternal purpose for mankind. Now, what is eternal is just as much present and future as past and so it can be entered into today."

Holy Week plays and programs will be noted by this column daily.

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1956

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Household matters, garden, office, furnishings, utilities, working out all points of a material nature with others is excellent today. The evening is usually happy in romantic, emotional outlets.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Do whatever is necessary today to get your charm, attractiveness at new height and your hobbies perfected as you have long desired. Keep steadily engaged in creative outlets. P.M. have fun. Be romantic. Be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Take a good look about your home and see what you can do to make it more attractive even though it just means changing around. Establish harmony there. P.M. fine for entertaining at your dwelling.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22)—Get out and finish those errands as well as visiting all with whom you have any joint ventures pending. Thresh out problems with relatives. P.M. excellent for social activity. Be outgoing.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23)—Many odds and ends connected with property, possessions, material matters require your complete attention today AND tonight. Don't let up. Keep in action till everything is as your pride most desires it.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)—This is your day to do whatever you want, go off on a trip, or meet with compatible comrades. Get yourself in pink of condition early. Then full speed ahead toward whatever attracts you the most. Have a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)—You see a mountain of odds-and-ends requiring your personal attention but do them quietly or you arouse some resentment if you act abruptly. Excellent for being of service to those less fortunate. Increase your prestige.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23)—Contacting staunch friends, warm admirers and talking out your mutual ambitions brings right solution to whatever may not be exactly as you would like to have it. P.M. take jaunt to some attractive site and forget cares.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23)—Now you have beautiful day to toss off all those public, civic, vocational duties, responsibilities that were difficult during the week. Get all credit matters in right shape. Reduce ideas to workable system.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24 to Jan. 20)—Early get your nose buried in sources of information that can answer your perplexities. Make new acquaintances also. Beautiful day to get out of your own little rut. Get off on trip if convenient. Be happy and open-minded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Meet all with whom you have joint undertakings, sit down and carefully thresh out how you wish to attend the minutiae of these ventures. P.M. fine for romantic pleasures, personal relationships.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—This is your day to definitely cement any bonds with others. Be sure you first know just what you want in all contracts, express or implied, with others. Then work out in detail. A serious-minded friend helps greatly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SATURDAY . . .

Saturday's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who is always very precise and meticulous about whatever he, or she, does. You will early find an enjoyment in his, or her, keeping clothing, toys, etc., in good order. Fine chart for work which requires a very earthy and detailed approach such as diagnostic, antiseptic, prophylactic, dietetic, laboratory, research, especially where physical, real estate or very down-to-earth vocations are concerned. For best results always explain your wishes in detail.

SUNDAY, MARCH 25, 1956

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Today is one of those moments when you actually can see the way to get along in full harmony with co-workers in your daily dealings. Make notations so you won't forget. Then put into practice at once or you lose some of the impetus.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—A warm, happy feeling permeates you, if in tune with your astrological aspects from dawn through tonight. Be sure you let others know your affection and devotion. Then you have unusually wonderful results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Looking at living the Golden Rule more as your family desires reveals some missteps you may have made in the past which are easily corrected now. Fine for getting together tonight with members of your own clan.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22)—Your mind is working overtime to get the exact, discriminating answer to whatever may not have suited you. Church helps solve early. Then remainder of day excellent for all discussions, errands, visits, etc.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23)—Your inherited background has the answer to anything disturbing, unsatisfactory in the past. Unite your own experience and you have unbeatable, workable arrangement for present, future.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)—Today be just as personal as you like. Decide early just what you want. Then spend remainder of day, night, putting into effect with such speed others are impressed and go along with your cherished longings.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)—Quietly being still long enough to get the answer to whatever is of moment, really brings you the answers now. Then you can get together with intimates and experts and find out how they'll best go along with you. CO-OPERATE.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23)—Your aims are much closer than you think when you apply the exact principle which has to do with whatever your specific need happens to be. Get together with good-hearted but careful experts and work new arrangement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23)—Listen to one in authority who knows your worldly ambitions and can bestow information that releases credit, public acclaim. Then put at once into motion so others can see your special qualifications and aid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24 to Jan. 20)—Listen to high-minded, spiritual, educational, scientific advisor who has it in his power to extend exact data you need. This may come through writings as well as at church, lectures, etc. Be open-minded. Delve deeply into new ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Being still long enough to LET your deep-seated understanding come to the surface brings some factual manner for settling debts of all kinds as well as gaining added assets of spiritual nature.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Much conversation with any who come near you finds you benefit mutually in arriving at some practical conclusion to your discussion. Make sure you iron out any points not clear between you. Cement bonds.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SUNDAY . . .

Today's child is one of those very up-to-date youngsters who will have a desire to take existing conditions long in effect and modernize them in the future. Then you will find your offspring makes your home more attractive by applying this talent at your residence. Fine chart for a very clear and meticulous-minded character who requires detailed specifications for working at his, or her, best.

Trans-Canada Outlet Here Scored in Commons by Pearkes

OTTAWA—Opposition members Thursday night described as inadequate the new federal proposals to boost spending on the trans-Canada highway.

rather late," said Mal. Gen. G.
R. Pearkes, VC (PC, Esquimault-Saanich).
And more roads are needed through the mountains of British Columbia for defence purposes, General Pearkes said.

Pearkes said bridges being built on the highway were not sufficiently strong to carry new, very heavy defence equipment built for road transportation.

VICTORIA SITUATION

General Pearkes also warned against ribbon development taking place on the outskirts of many Canadian cities on the trans-Canada highway, particularly leading out of Victoria.

"I know that on the new portion of the trans-Canada highway out of Victoria there are innumerable auto courts, stores and small buildings being constructed," General Pearkes declared. "If we are going to have that sort of ribbon development we will defeat one of the main objects of the trans-Canada highway as well as add to the risk of the loss of life."

"I would hope it would be feasible for the federal government to reach agreement with the provinces, and possibly with the municipalities as well, to prevent this handicap."

H. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West) said no final choice of the highway's route between Mount Eisenhower, in Alberta west of Banff, and Revelstoke,
B.C., should be made until the Jumbo pass is investigated.

It was one of three alternatives being mentioned in the area. The others were Rogers pass and Kicking Horse pass.
Bert Leboe (TSC, Cariboo) said there should be through truck routes in national parks.
He didn't want to see the Alberta and B.C. sections of the highway finished while the park sections, responsibility of the federal government, became traffic bottlenecks.

Davie Fulton (PC, Kamloops) termed the government proposition a "halfway measure."

The plan to boost the normal 50 per cent federal share of the 4,580-mile road's cost to a 90 per cent contribution on up to one-tenth of the highway's mileage in each province has been described by Works Minister Winters as a gap-closing operation to complete the highway in the next four years.

The total authorized federal contribution would be increased to $250,000,000 from $150,000,000
—the figure set when the trans-
Canada plan was begun in 1949 at an estimated cost of $300, 000,000.

Under the new agreements, 90 per cent federal contributions would be made towards parts of the highway up to 10 per cent of its mileage in each province.

Campbell To Seek New Speed Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Handsome Donald Campbell, British speed-boat driver who has travelled faster on water than any other man, said Wednesday he hopes to try in September for an unprecedented 250 miles an hour on a Texas lake.

The son of the late Malcolm Campbell, himself an auto and speedboat record holder, leaves today aboard the liner United States for London. His famous jet-propelled boat, the Bluebird, is going back to England for certain modifications.

Campbell, 34, piloted the Bluebird over Lake Mead, Nev., at an average speed of 216.25 mph last Nov. 16. That broke Campbell's previous mark of 202.32, made in England last July.

"I hope to return in July for tests and exhibitions, and we have set a target of 250 mph for 1956," he said. Campbell said the probable record site is Eagle Mountain Lake, near Fort Worth.

New Wage Pacts For 100 Workers

KITIMAT, B.C. (BUP)—Wage pacts of two and three years have been signed covering more than 100 painters and sheet metal workers at Kitimat.

The AFL Sheet Metal Workers Union signed a three-year contract establishing rates of $2.52 hourly for journeymen, $2.07 for roofers and $1.95 for helpers.

The two-year contract signed by AFL painters with Sagienay-Kitimat Co., a subsidiary of Aluminum Company of Canada, calls for wages of $2.45 for spray painters, $2.40 for sign-men, and $2.30 for brush painters.

13-YEAR-OLD JOCKEY PLAYS TRUANT TO RIDE

MALPAS, England (Reuters) — Thirteen-year-old Robin Langley is in hot water with school officials —because he played hooky from school to ride in

Robin, Britain's youngest successful jockey, rode a 66-to-1 outsider, Arts Degree, in the Lincolnshire Handicap Wednesday. The horse finished far back, but racegoers agreed it was a good performance in a career that began when Robin was only 11.

But education authorities whom he had defied to take part in the race did not regard it as a good performance. The local education committee will consider his truancy at its next meeting.

"If repeated, it could have a serious effect on his education," an official said. "It looks to me a bad thing."

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Will you please give me the years in which Shrove Tuesday has fallen on 26th February since 1880?—S.M.C.

A.—As far as this column has been able to ascertain, Shrove Tuesday, since 1880, has been on February 26 in these years only: 1884, 1895 and 1932. It will come again in 1963. Rev. D. B. Rogers, M.A., B.C.L., editorial secretary of the Canadian Churchman, national magazine of the Anglican Church of Canada, whose research work provided this column with this historical information, adds: "Your inquirer may be interested to know it was on Feb. 24 in 1903, 1914 and 1925. It was on Feb. 25 in 1879, 1936 and 1941.

It was on Feb. 27 in 1900."

Q.—How old is the Department of Agriculture of Canada?
—C.L.

A.—It was constituted in 1867, the year of Confederation.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.
All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Russia 'Yearns for Peace', Toronto Industrialist Says

OTTAWA (BUP)—Russia is a "gun-shy, warweary nation yearning for peace," Toronto industrialist James R. Duncan told the Canadian Club here.

"Their dearest wish is to be left alone to bring up their families," Duncan, who recently toured the Soviet Union, said.

"The threat for world peace does not spring from communism alone," he said, "it comes from the conjunction of communism with Russian expansionism."

Duncan played the west, "including Canada," for "seriously lagging behind in technical education," and called for "bold imaginative and energetic action in a revision of our educational system."

"Canada must divert itself of complacency and its softness born of easy living to meet the challenge of communism," he said.

Columbia Diversion Plan Hit by IJC Head

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States would suffer "substantial injury" if Canada carried out full-scale diversions of Columbia river waters on its side of the border, Len Jordan, chairman of the U.S. section of the international joint commission, told a Senate sub-committee on interior affairs Thursday.

Jordan said diversions now under study and consideration by the Canadian government would have "serious adverse effects" upon existing and proposed Columbia river hydro-electric plants in the United States.

He testified as the sub-committee opened a review of conflicting Canadian and American interests in development of the Columbia river, which rises in Columbia lake, B.C., on the western slope of the Rockies and crosses the international boundary into the state of Washington near Trail, B.C.

The United States is seeking an agreement with Canada on the issue of downstream benefits which could be obtained from the building of power plants in the U.S. section of the river. Canada, meantime, has under way studies into the possibility of diverting the Columbia waters into the Fraser river for power production within Canada.

Senator Richard Neuberger
(Dem. Ore.), who prepared a report for the committee last December on Canadian proposals to develop the Columbia, emphasized the urgency of reaching agreement on a program beneficial to both countries. This urgency, he said, was increased by the "threat" posed to the U.S. Pacific northwest by the possibility that Canada might divert the waters in the absence of an agreement with the United States.

"It is, of course, apparent that such a diversion, if it takes place, will be disastrous for the future of our own Pacific northwest and that it will raise the gravest kind of conflict between ourselves and the nation which may be called our closest neighbor."

Senator James E. Murray (Dem.
Ore.), sub-committee chairman, said the "impasse" between the two governments has created a power shortage in the Pacific northwest.

Firemen's Wage Dispute Going To Arbitration

A wage settlement board named by city firemen and Victoria council will be in the form of an arbitration rather than a conciliation body, a provincial labor spokesman said today.

He said this will mean findings of the board are binding. He explained such procedure is required in all wage disputes involving police and firemen who are not privileged to strike, by provincial law.

City council Wednesday named Frank H. Partridge as its nominee to the three-man board. Firemen have named Vancouver alderman Halford Wilson who served in the same capacity in 1951 and 1952.

So far the two nominees have not agreed on a chairman. If they cannot reach agreement a chairman will be appointed by the minister of labor.

Mr. Partridge, retired city businessman, is known locally for his interest and his comment on labor matters. He was writer of a letter received by council Wednesday protesting civic wage increases.

In negotiations so far the firemen have asked 9.7 per cent more wage and have been offered an increase of 1.3 per cent this year and 1.75 per cent in 1957.

Esquimalt police union has taken steps to obtain a conciliation officer in its wage dispute with police commission. The union, with a constable's rate of $306 at present, is asking for wage stand-ardization with Victoria city police, whose recently won rate for first-class constables is $332 a month.

DON'T FENCE THEM IN

Too Many 'Don'ts' Hamstringing Children

Greater courtesy and consideration should be shown by parents to their teen-age youngsters, according to Dr. Leyda S. Lythgoe, one of Victoria's prominent mental health authorities.

Speaking to Central Junior High PTA, she stated the modern tendency is to fence a child with "don'ts" instead of stressing the activities a child may "do."

"The wise parent will set definite boundaries for conduct, with little gates through which to go for experience."

She chided parents for exasperation with teen-agers who fail to show vocational tendencies, knowledge of money-value and ease in social contact.

These cannot be acquired without careful parental guidance. On the other hand, the doctor stressed the danger of paying too great attention to a child's special talents, thus depriving him of a balanced "ability to live."

Miss L. Milne of the school's home economics department displayed dresses and accessories made by students, who acted as their own models.

Wrestler to Enter Mass Strait Swim

A 248-pound professional wrestler announced today he will enter the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored mass swim across Juan de Fuca Strait late this summer.

Don Leroy Kindred, 31, a Montreal-born former U.S. Army officer, said following a wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom: "If Bert Thomas can do it, I can do it."

The university-educated grappler said he'd like to be the first colored person to conquer the strait.

Kindred has been testing his endurance to cold water in Lake Washington, Seattle.

He has been training on ground raw steak.

"I am really sincere about wanting to swim the strait," he said. "I wouldn't want people to think I'm going to try just for the publicity to help my name in wrestling."

He has fought all over North America, and in Australia and New Zealand.

Kindred is a former assistant lifeguard on beaches at Atlantic City and Cape May, N.J.

Six hours is about the longest he has stayed in salt water, but this was in warm water at Hawaii, and was purely recreational. He has yet to remain that time in these coastal waters.

Don measures five feet 10½ inches, is well-proportioned with emphasis on extra-developed chest, neck and shoulders.

Meanwhile, Mayor Ivor Smith of Port Angeles said today he will approach the chamber of commerce there to enlist aid in raising funds for a strait swim.

He is particularly interested in the projected match race between Bert Thomas of Tacoma and Canadian champion marathon swimmer Cliff Lumsdon of New Toronto, this summer.

Asked if he thought the chamber of commerce there would support the swim—a minimum of $10,000 is needed—he said:

"I'm sure they would bring it up for a drive. I'm contacting them today. Personally, I think the whole idea is fine, and think things like this do a great deal to build mutual interests between our two cities and our two countries."

The Port Angeles chamber meets Monday and the subject will be discussed at that time. The Junior Chamber of Commerce here has set its sights for $15,000 for a mass race for the strait.

AMAZING TALE BEFORE COURT HERE

Placed Under Spell In Empress Hotel Woman Tells Judge

A Victoria woman claimed in Supreme Court today that her divorced husband hired a woman hypnotist from Toronto to hypnotize her into going back to him.

Mrs. Helen Emma Cooper of 887 Cowper Avenue, Victoria, was granted an injunction to restrain her former husband, Thomas Amiel Cooper, and Mrs. Westlake, the hypnotist, from "interfering or committing trespass in any way" upon her.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson granted the injunction, after three affidavits had been filed with the court.

Mrs. Cooper's affidavit stated that she divorced her husband, Thomas Cooper, in Victoria on Feb. 8, 1954. The decree gave her custody of their two children, Terry Amiel Cooper and Tamarra Shlomite Cooper, but the husband had right of access to them.

She claimed she was hypnotized in a room at the Empress hotel.

Two police officers stated that the woman tried to hypnotize them and it was so effective they told her to "stop it."

Ever since, the husband had continually annoyed and bothered her with telephone calls by himself and persons in his employ—"in particular a woman known to me as Mrs. Dorothy Westlake," the woman claimed.

Mrs. Cooper alleged her husband hired Mrs. Westlake to hypnotize her into returning to him. She said the hypnotist took place in a room at the Empress Hotel after Mrs. Westlake had invited her up there to "talk about furniture."

Mrs. Cooper said she was employed in a furniture store in Victoria. On March 13 this year, a blonde woman walked into the store and said she was new to Victoria and would be needing household furniture.

"She said she was a hypnotist from Toronto and a friend had suggested that if she was in Victoria she should contact Miss Beltruss—my maiden name and the one I work under at the store."

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake asked her to dinner at the Empress Hotel for a "talk about furniture." She offered to bring the store manager but Mrs. Westlake said: "No, I want to talk business with a woman."

In the hotel room Mrs. Westlake said she was known as Madame Westlake. She came from England and had been in Toronto a short time. Then she came out to Vancouver and, "not liking the climate there, had proceeded to Victoria."

Mrs. Westlake talked about furniture for a while, then switched to her own personal affairs. She said she had recently re-married her husband and was expecting him to arrive in Victoria the next day.

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake laid particular emphasis on her re-marriage during the conversation.

"I felt something was not right," Mrs. Cooper stated in the affidavit. She then called on a private investigator, Conrad Watling of the National Investigation Agency, Ltd., and told him what had happened.

Mr. Watling agreed to investigate the woman hypnotist during a second meeting she had arranged with Mrs. Cooper at the Empress Hotel.

They went together to the Empress Hotel where she introduced Mr. Watling to Mrs. Westlake as a friend of hers named "Con."

Mr. Watling left the room soon after saying he had to make another call. Mrs. Westlake said to him "Don't worry, you are leaving her in good hands." She was wearing lounge pyjamas and had a drink beside her.

The room was almost overpowering with the scent of perfume and "very warm," Mrs. Cooper stated. Mrs. Westlake told her to make herself at home and said "Perhaps a drink would relax you."

Mrs. Cooper said while they were talking about furniture Mrs. Westlake spilled a drink over her dress—she thought intentionally—then suggested she should change into pyjamas.

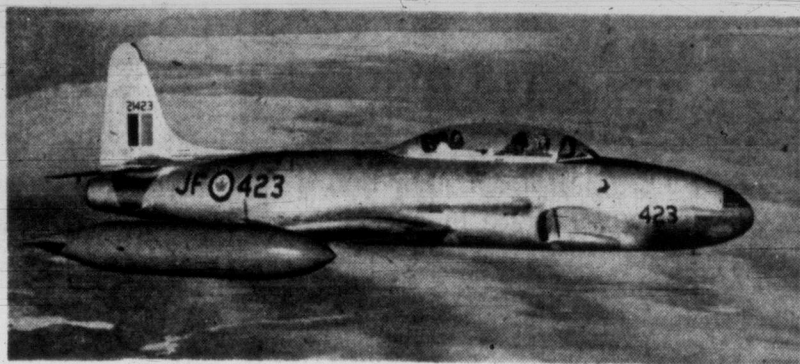

She did as requested and Mrs. Westlake reverted to her own personal affairs.

"She said she herself was in love with six different men all at the same time as well as married to her husband and she could have an affair with any of these men at any time she pleased in front of her husband, or otherwise, because her husband was in her power."

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake told her she would be capable of running the government because "women at all times are stronger than men."

Mrs. Westlake said she could give her this power and added: "There is no reason for people to die. To die is not necessary." She said her own husband was 65 and she was capable of stopping him from aging.

T-33 jet trainer, twin of missing Comox-based aircraft.

Wing of Missing Jet Believed Sighted

Searchers Investigate Object Seen at Willow Point; One Pilot Ex-Victorian

An object believed to be the wing of an aircraft, sighted today near Willow Point, south of Campbell River, was due for investigation today by searchers hunting for two men aboard an RCAF jet trainer missing since Thursday noon.

A search still was underway by air, sea, and on foot in the territory east of Campbell River where the plane, on a training flight from Comox airport, was reported lost.

In the missing T-33 trainer were FO J. E. Miller, formerly of Victoria, and FO J. S. Stubbs, formerly of Winnipeg. Both lived at Comox with their families.

Vancouver officers of the RCAF said a member of the Ground Observer Corps reported sighting what appeared to be the wing of an airplane in the water off Willow Point.

Other GOC members today joined parties to scour the beach from Campbell River south, and to patrol the beaches of Cortez and Raza Islands, where tugboat crews reported hearing a loud explosion Thursday noon.

The plane took off from Comox Thursday at 9:48 a.m., and had fuel for two hours and 10 minutes.

Cortez Island, 15 miles east of Campbell River, is 15 miles in length and eight wide, and boasts four communities. Raza Island is about five miles north of Cortez.

Search officials said it is impossible to tell whether the plane went down on land or in the turbulent, tide-torn waters between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The RCAF's No. 121 Search and Rescue Squadron at nearby Sea Island was to send two more Canso amphibians, two Expediter reconnaissance planes, one single-engine Otter and a helicopter.

The air force base at Comox was expected to contribute six aircraft, probably four-engine Lancasters.

The tug Salvage Queen and the towboat Hecate Strait reported a low-flying jet in the area about noon. Then they heard a crash in the fog.

Two Lancasters from Comox patrolled the Georgia Strait area throughout the night, looking for flares or other traces of the plane and fliers.

An RCAF spokesman said the helicopter should be particularly useful in today's search.

"If the plane is down on land, then the helicopter would be the most likely to spot it, since it can go in close," he said.

WIRE BRIEFS

Sloan Sidelined

TORONTO (CP)—Tod Sloan, star Toronto Maple Leaf centre, fractured his shoulder-blade in Thursday night's National Hockey League playoff game at Detroit and will be out for the rest of the series, the club announced today. (See sports pages.)

Youths Get Life

NICOSIA (Reuters)—A British judge today sentenced three Greek-Cypriot youths to life imprisonment for carrying firearms, after pointing out that he was being lenient in not sentencing them to death.

Reds Teach Egyptians

LONDON (Reuters)—The foreign office said today that Russian instructors, at a secret military base in Poland, are training "large numbers" of Egyptian military personnel to use their newly-acquired Communist arms.

U.S. Reds Jailed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Five Ohio Communist leaders convicted of conspiring to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government were sentenced today to five years in prison. A sixth, a woman, drew a term of 3½ years.

U.S. Jet Crashes

HARTLINE, Wash. (AP)—A jet fighter plane crashed in a field near here today after the pilot parachuted to safety.

U.S. Unveils New Secret Bomb-Killer

FORI MEADE, Md. (UP)—The army today unveiled the "missile master"—a hug electronic brain whose lightning-like action can launch scores of Nike guided missiles against enemy air raiders.

Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker said that Missile Masters will be installed at major industrial, population and military centres to control the fire of Nike batteries against attackers.

The secretary created a flurry by asserting that the electronic brain can detect aircraft "and missiles," and control counterattacks on such invaders.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

"O GOD, give us the knowledge that Thou art the Light that lightens days dark with sadness, the Solution to lives filled with problems, the Guide for those lost in a maze, the Promise that in 'him' that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out," through Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

U.K. Ready To Fight In Mid-East

Military Action Plans Completed

LONDON (UP)—Britain officially confirmed today that it has completed a stand-by plan for military action in the Middle East in case of war.

Official sources also said the Big Three foreign ministers will meet in Paris next month to mesh the mid-east military plans of the United States, Britain and France.

The formal British announcement through the foreign office was the first notice yet given by a western power that an Arab or Israeli act of aggression will be met by western force.

The announcement of Britain's readiness to intervene was seen here as a measure of the gravity with which the western Big Three regard the danger of war in the Middle East.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today called top diplomatic, defence and security officials to the White House.

It was considered highly probable the meeting involved the Middle East crisis.

The president planned to meet with Secretary of State Dulles, Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency and Chairman Arthur M. Radford of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Others scheduled to attend the conference were Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles, Under Secretary of State Herbert Hovver Jr. and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, air force chief of staff.

FO Stubbs, 32, is the father of a girl of 18 months.

FO Miller had been at the island air base only a month.

Two Canso amphibians from the RCAF's Sea Island base here took off early today to search for the jet trainer.

"It is possible the pilot and co-pilot used their seat-ejector to bail out," an RCAF spokesman said.

Fourteen aircraft were to take part in the search which was delayed from a planned dawn take-off by rain, fog, low clouds and gusty winds. However, weather conditions were improving rapidly and all the planes were expected to be aloft well before noon.

Several Laborite members of Parliament were getting increasingly concerned about the visit and said they would ask Prime Minister Anthony Eden to explain to Commons about "the arrival of bands of armed foreigners from Russia." Conservatives wanted to know the reason for Serov's visit.

So Saturday Mrs. Rasmussen, her husband Hans, daughter Karen, 16, and all their friends and neighbors are going to try to capture the bird that has been on the loose for five days.

Thursday, Mrs. Rasmussen was summoned to a backyard where Klaus was performing imitations. She called up to her pet: "Do you want to go home?"

"Not yet," he screeched back. So Mrs. Rasmussen went home without him.

Klaus kept on hopping about the trees, meowing like a cat and shouting insults at the neighbors.

Residents of St. James have been in a turmoil since Klaus bolted home last Sunday. The telephone in the Rasmussen home has been ringing steadily as people keep phoning in progress reports on Klaus' activities.

Klaus does the craziest things. He can sing "How Much is That Doggie in the Window." At home he dances two cats.

Parents of Lost Flier Reside Here

FO Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Miller, 1207 Union Road, was sent known in Victoria, and had spent leave here with his wife and two children early last month. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are in Comox today.

FO Stubbs, 32, is the father of a girl of 18 months.

FO Miller had been at the island air base only a month.

Sassy, Swearing Crow in Bad, Family Posse Hunts Him Down

WINNIPEG (CP)—They're out to capture Klaus the crow on Saturday.

Residents of suburban St. James are beginning to blush. For Klaus has started to swear at them.

"I don't know where he learned to swear; we certainly never taught him to do that," his owner, Mrs. Edith Rasmussen, said today.

So Saturday Mrs. Rasmussen, her husband Hans, daughter Karen, 16, and all their friends and neighbors are going to try to capture the bird that has been on the loose for five days.

3,000-MILE TEST RUN FOR GAS TURBINE CAR

DETROIT (UP)—Chrysler engineers will put their gas turbine-powered automobile to a milestone test next week by trying to drive it 3,000 miles cross-country from New York to Los Angeles.

If the car performs flawlessly under the varied driving conditions from coast to coast, the dream of doing away with conventional piston-type automobile engines will be a big step closer to reality.

The engine, already tested extensively in Michigan, is mounted in a 1956 Plymouth sedan. The car will leave New York Monday morning.

M' Uncle Zeke's wife once tried havin' him hypnotized into wantin' t' work. It durn near killed th' hypnotist.

See where Khrushchev wants 120 armed guards when he visits London. That ain't so much. Bet he needs about 500 when he's at home among his friends.

Don't think it's the length or th' width o' thet Cassiar road thet's botherin' th' Gov'mint so much. It's jest thet they're gittin' in too deep.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $200 AS PUZZLERS OFF BASE

Just one wrong letter was responsible for throwing thousands of Times Crossword puzzlers out of line last week. The correct answer to the first clue down was "oases," described as "usually easy to spot from the air."

Most entries gave the solution as bases, wrong because every effort is usually made to keep them from being easily spotted.

Holdup Attempt Apparently Foiled

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mask, several large paper bags, and a bullet found in an abandoned car with stolen licence plates here today led police to believe they had foiled a bank hold-up.

Constable Ed Hart said he stopped a light green car to check the four occupants—a woman driver, disguised with a man's hat and gloves, and three young men.

He said the two men in the rear seat slid to the floor and the car sped away on its approach. It was found later.

Strike Slows Work at Atom Plant

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP)—Construction work at the Hanford Works was slowed today for the second day by a strike of three unions.

Many of the 1,200 construction workers at the atomic project, belonging to other unions, continued to work. The strike by the Teamsters' Union, however, stopped delivery of materials for the workmen. There was no picketing.

Other striking unions are the operating engineers and the cement finishers and plasterers. Officials said only about 16 of the latter union's members are involved.

Jockey York Hurt in Tanforan Race

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (UP)—Veteran jockey Ray York was carried from the track unconscious at Tanforan today when his mount stumbled and fell in the first race.

York, aboard the five-year-old mare named Second Down, was injured when the horse stumbled and rolled over. Second Down was 11th in a field of 12 horses at the time of the accident. He suffered a broken left leg.

Believed SightedSearchers Investigate Object Seen at Willow Point; One Pilot Ex-Victorian

An object believed to be the wing of an aircraft, sighted today near Willow Point, south of Campbell River, was due for investigation today by searchers hunting for two men aboard an RCAF jet trainer missing since Thursday noon.

A search still was underway by air, sea, and on foot in the territory east of Campbell River where the plane, on a training flight from Comox airport, was reported lost.

In the missing T-33 trainer were FO J. E. Miller, formerly of Victoria, and FO J. S. Stubbs, formerly of Winnipeg. Both lived at Comox with their families.

SCOUR BEACH

Vancouver officers of the RCAF said a member of the Ground Observer Corps reported sighting what appeared to be the wing of an airplane in the water off Willow Point.

Other GOC members today joined parties to scour the beach from Campbell River south, and to patrol the beaches of Cortez and Raza Islands, where tugboat crews reported hearing a loud explosion Thursday noon.

The plane took off from Comox Thursday at 9:48 a.m., and had fuel for two hours and 10 minutes.

Cortez Island, 15 miles east of Campbell River, is 15 miles in length and eight wide, and boasts four communities. Raza

U.S. Unveils
New Secret
Bomb-Killer

FORT MEADE, Md. (UP)—The army today unveiled the "Missile Master"—a huge electronic brain whose lightning-like action can launch scores of Nike guided missiles against enemy air raiders.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker said that Missile Masters will be installed at major industrial, population and military centres to control the fire of Nike batteries against attackers.

The secretary created a flurry by asserting that the electronic brain can detect aircraft "and missiles," and control counter-attacks on such invaders.

Wrestler to Enter
Mass Strait Swim

A 248-pound professional wrestler announced today he will enter the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored mass swim across Juan de Fuca Strait late this summer.

Don Leroy Kindred, 31, a Montreal-born former U.S. Army officer, said following a wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom.

"If Bert Thomas can do it, I can do it," he said.

The university-educated grappler said he'd like to be the first colored person to conquer the strait.

RAW STEAK DIET

Kindred has been testing his endurance to cold water in Lake Washington, Seattle.

He has been training on ground raw steak.

"I am really sincere about it," he said.

Sloan Sidelined

TORONTO (CP)—Tod Sloan, star Toronto Maple Leaf center, fractured his shoulder-blade in Thursday night's National Hockey League playoff game at Detroit and will be out for the rest of the series, the club announced today. (See sports pages.)

City Divorcee
Put Under Spell
In Empress Hotel

A Victoria woman claimed in Supreme Court chambers today that her divorced husband, hired a woman hypnotist from Toronto to hypnotize her into going back to him.

Mrs. Helen Emma Cooper of 887 Cowper Avenue, Victoria, was granted an injunction to restrain her former husband, Thomas Amiel Cooper, and Mrs. Dorothy Westlake, the hypnotist, from "interfering or committing trespass in any way upon her."

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson granted the injunction after three affidavits had been filed with the court.

Mrs. Cooper's affidavit stated that she divorced her husband, Thomas Cooper, in Victoria on Feb. 8, 1954. The decree gave her custody of their two children, Terry Ammon Cooper and Tamarra Shlomite Cooper, but the husband had right of access to them.

She claimed she was hypnotized in a room at the Empress hotel.

Two police officers stated that the woman tried to hypnotize them and it was so effective they told her to "stop it."

Hypnotist Hired by Ex-Mate

Mrs. Cooper alleged her husband hired Mrs. Westlake to hypnotize her into returning to him. She said the hypnotist took place in a room at the Empress Hotel after Mrs. Westlake had invited her up there to "talk about furniture."

Mrs. Cooper said she was employed in a furniture store in Victoria. On March 13 this year, a blonde woman walked into the store and said she was new to Victoria and would be needing household furniture.

"She said she was a hypnotist from Toronto and a friend had suggested that if she was in Victoria she should contact Miss Beirness—my maiden name and the one I work under at the store."

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake asked her to dinner at the Empress Hotel for a "talk about furniture." She offered to bring the store manager but Mrs. Westlake said: "No, I want to talk business with a woman."

In the hotel room Mrs. Westlake said she was known as Madame Westlake. She came from England and had been in Toronto a short time. Then she came out to Vancouver and, "not liking the climate there, had proceeded to Victoria."

Mrs. Westlake talked about furniture for a while, then switched to her own personal affairs. She said she had recently re-married her husband and was expecting him to arrive in Victoria the next day.

Mrs. Cooper said Mrs. Westlake laid particular emphasis on her re-marriage during the conversation.

"I felt something was not right," Mrs. Cooper stated in the affidavit. She then called on a private investigator, Conrad Watling of the National Investigation Agency, Ltd., and told him what had happened.

Mr. Watling agreed to investigate the woman hypnotist during a second meeting she had arranged with Mrs. Cooper at the Empress Hotel.

They went together to the Empress Hotel where she introduced Mrs. Watling to Mrs. Westlake as a friend of hers named "Con."

Perfumed Room Overpowering

Mr. Watling left the room soon afterwards saying he had to make another call. Mrs. Westlake said to him "Don't worry, you are leaving her in good hands." She was wearing lounge pajamas and had a drink beside her.

"The room was almost overpowering with the scent of perfume and very warm," Mrs. Cooper stated. Mrs. Westlake told her to make herself at home and said "Perhaps a drink would relax you."

She alleged that Mrs. Westlake, after putting her into a state of trance, telephoned her husband and said: "Mr. Cooper this is Madame Westlake. You Continued on Page 26

U.K. Ready to Fight
In Middle East Crisis

LONDON (UP)—Britain officially confirmed today that it has completed a stand-by plan for military action in the Middle East in case of war.

Official sources also said the Big Three foreign ministers will meet in Paris next month to mesh the mid-east military plans of the United States, Britain and France.

The formal British announcement through the foreign office was the first notice yet given by a western power that an Arab or Israeli act of aggression will be met by western force.

The announcement of Britain's readiness to intervene was seen here as a measure of the gravity of the situation.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today called top diplomatic, defence and security officials to the White House.

It was considered highly probable the meeting involved the Middle East crisis.

The president planned to meet with Secretary of State Dulles, Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency and Chairman Arthur M. Radford of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Others scheduled to attend the conference were Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles, Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, air force chief of staff.
